

Navy Considers Caribbean Base To Bolster U. S. Canal Defenses

Reports Plan 'Would Undoubtedly Add To Security'

ALLIES' ISLANDS

Find Proposal Also Would Help Maintain Monroe Doctrine

Washington—(AP)—While a more formidable fleet was being urged on congress because of the European war, the navy evinced interest today in acquiring a base in the southeast Caribbean to plug a potential chink in Panama canal defenses.

It discussed this subject in a statement answering a series of questions from Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the senate naval committee.

"A fleet air base in the southeast corner of the Caribbean," the navy department said, "would undoubtedly add to the security of the area as well as to the ability of the United States fleet to insure the integrity of the Monroe doctrine."

Existing naval installations in Florida, Cuba and Puerto Rico control most of the Atlantic approaches to the canal, but the United States has no bases to guard the flank adjacent to the top-most part of South America.

British, French Islands

The islands in those waters are British and French possessions. Their acquisition in lieu of war debt payments has been suggested frequently in congress, but not until last night did the navy officially mention these proposals in discussing the desirability of a base to the south.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, testifying yesterday at senate hearings on the $655,000,000 fleet expansion bill, advocated a 25 per cent increase in the navy construction program.

The present fleet, he said, "is too small—much too small" to deal with any combination of hostile nations that could command the captured naval might of Britain and France.

Asked by Mr. Walsh whether the navy recommended that congress appropriate $45,000,000 more for the navy than the $965,000,000 voted by the house.

Asked by Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) whether he thought an emergency now existed, admiral Stark replied:

"In my opinion, an emergency exists when our relative position is continually becoming weaker, as it is now."

Of the additional $45,000,000 which Stark recommended for appropriation $18,000,000 would be for ship facilities on shore and $27,000,000 for shipbuilding.

This would provide, he indicated, for laying the keels of four cruisers, 13 destroyers and eight submarines in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Eyes Far East

Uncle Sam's eyes also turned toward the Far East, where Japan has warned that any repercussions from the European war on the Netherlands East Indies "would give rise to an undesirable situation."

This apparently meant that Japan would not tolerate guardianship of the islands by the United States or Great Britain should the war engulf Holland.

In the view of informed observers in Washington, the United States, which has an annual trade of more than $100,000,000 with the East Indies, would object if any power tried to take advantage of an invaded Holland by seizing her eastern empire.

The islands, it was pointed out, have considerable self-government and, if necessary, could govern themselves.

Senate Approves Bill Authorizing New U. S. Judges

Measure Is Returned to House for Action on Amendments

Washington—(AP)—The senate passed legislation today authorizing the appointment of three additional circuit court judges and six federal district court judges.

The vote was 47 to 21 for passage. It sends the measure back to the house for action on senate amendments.

As voted by the senate, the measure would provide for appointment of two new judges in the eighth circuit, covering Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Nebraska, North Dakota. One additional judge would be named for the sixth circuit, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The measure would authorize appointment of district judges in the southern district of California, New Jersey, western district of Ohio, Iowa, eastern Pennsylvania, southern New York and one judge for northern and southern Florida.

The house previously had voted to add a judge each in northern Illinois and northern Georgia. Both were cut out by the senate committee, which added the proposed Florida judgeship.

Uniformity Bill

The Roosevelt administration was represented in congressional circles today as strongly opposed to the Logan-Walter bill to create uniform procedure for federal administrative agencies.

Nevertheless, both sides predicted that the house would join the senate in approving the measure.

Representative Celler (D-N. Y.) said the bill was opposed by most independent government agencies, as well as every member of President Roosevelt's cabinet, primarily because it would try to regulate their diverse functions by a single yardstick.

Fined $100 and Costs For Maltreating Son

Rhineland—(AP)—Charles M. Gibson, president of the Rhineland Chamber of Commerce, was fined $100 and costs yesterday by County Judge H. F. Steele after Gibson was found guilty of maltreating his 6-year-old son, Charles, Jr.

Gibson admitted at a hearing that he burned two fingers of his son's left hand after other corrective measures failed to halt the child's inclination to play with matches. Two small blisters were the only result of the punishment, he said.

The court said it wished it might order the sheriff to give Gibson the same punishment that had been meted out to the son.

PRESIDENT URGES PAN-AMERICAN PREPAREDNESS

Appearing before the governing board of the Pan-American union on the observance on the union's fiftieth anniversary, President Roosevelt deplored war abroad as "more horrible and destructive than ever" and said the Americas could keep open the way to eventual peace "only if we are prepared to meet force with force if challenge is ever made." Mr. Roosevelt is shown with Secretary of State Cordell Hull (right) and Dr. Hector David Castro, vice chairman of the governing board of the union and minister from El Salvador.

New Milwaukee Mayor Urges 'Fair' Property Assessment And Pledges Self to Economy

Milwaukee—(AP)—Mayor Carl F. Zeidler, addressing the city council and several thousand of his supporters who attended his inauguration ceremonies this afternoon, called for "fair and just assessment of all property in our city."

Zeidler, who succeeded to the office of Daniel W. Hoan, Socialist, held for 24 years, said:

"It has been brought to my attention that much of the taxable property in our city is assessed for more than could be obtained for it at private sale. Property must be fairly assessed if it is to be fairly taxed. I recommend such action on our part as will bring about a fair and just assessment of all property in our city. Property is worth what it will sell for and not what an assessor thinks it is worth."

The 32-year-old mayor said the general property tax is levied and collected without regard for the owner's ability to pay.

Must Ease Burden

"We must apply our best thought and effort toward making property ownership attractive and secure," he continued, "and to that end lighten the burden by curtailing functions and activities which are not strictly essential to public order and the public welfare, and in every other way to promote economy, but without impairing the efficiency of essential functions or activities."

"I recommend such action on our part as will result in a worthwhile reduction in taxes and assurance that they will remain reduced, and that unreasonable restrictions be repealed, to the end that the unemployed dollars will venture forth and put unemployed men to work."

Would Cut Regulation

Discussing the economic depression "which drags on," the new mayor asserted that "while you and I can do little toward improving conditions from a national viewpoint, we have a right to believe that we can do much toward improving our local situation."

"I am confident that our efforts will bear fruit if we but revive and adhere to a few age-old fundamentals, the first of which is that there shall be more business in government and less government in business; and the second is that private enterprise and initiative be liberated from unreasonable municipal restrictions and permitted to conduct lawful enterprise, subject only to reasonable regulation," he added.

Uncover Body of Murder Victim

'Several Indictments' to Be Sought in New York Slaying

Monticello, N. Y.—(AP)—District Attorney William Deckerman will ask the Sullivan county grand jury in June for "several indictments" in the death of Hyman Yuran, victim of Brooklyn's murder syndicate, whose body was recovered yesterday.

The long-missing New York city dress manufacturer's body was unearthed from a lime-filled pit near Loch Sheldrake, Deckerman said it had been buried in July, 1938, after Yuran had been murdered, allegedly at the behest of Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, industrial racketeer. The slaying, he added, was to prevent Yuran from testifying as a racket witness for Manhattan District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

Discovery of the body came after Brooklyn District Attorney William O'Dwyer, whose investigation unearthed the murder-for-cash syndicate, arrived from New York city with Sholem Bernstein, 29, object of a month's nationwide search until his surrender yesterday in Kings county court.

Bernstein pointed out the location of the grave and state police soon unearthed the body, positively identified through a Masonic card in the wallet. Deckerman said Yuran had been shot through the head.

Henry Will Not Enter Race for U. S. Senator

Jefferson, Wis.—(AP)—Robert K. Henry, former state treasurer, said today he would not be a candidate for United States senator.

"I am not a candidate and wouldn't even accept an appointment as senator," Henry said. "I do not want to leave Wisconsin."

Henry, who was elected treasurer in 1932 as a Democrat and ran in both the Democratic and Republican primaries of 1938 for the gubernatorial nomination, said he had since become a Republican.

He declined to comment when asked whether he would be a candidate for governor.

Princess Ingrid Is Mother of Daughter

Princess Knud, Frederick's younger brother, remains second in line of succession.

Illinois Officials Quiz Pair About 2 Small Coffins Found In Basement of Residence

Belvidere, Ill.—(AP)—Two tiny coffins, crudely-fashioned out of concrete, held the attention of Boone county authorities today as they studied a strange story told by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Huber.

The coffins were found on the basement floor of the Huber home. In them, the Hubers told Sheriff Perry C. Bennett, are the bodies of their son and of their grandson, the child of Willard Huber, Rockford, Ill.

The Hubers, both about 50 years old, told the sheriff that both babies had been born dead, the son 25 years ago, the grandson in 1938.

Coroner Floyd E. Atkins said the couple told him they had intended to provide regular burial for the babies "sometime," but wanted to have them near until that time.

The coffins were discovered yesterday after investigation of a story told by the Huber's 11-year-old daughter, Ruth, to playmates.

The couple told the coroner that the coffin containing the body of the son—born in 1917—was buried in the backyard of their former home at Muscatine, Iowa, for nine years. They exhumed it, they said, and brought it to Belvidere when they moved here several years ago.

Dr. Atkins reported that an X-ray picture of one coffin showed a nailed wooden box inside the concrete, but that no body was discernible.

The Hubers were not detained, the coroner said, adding that further inquiries would be made before deciding whether to open the coffins or make a formal investigation.

Sheriff Bennett said that through failure to obtain death certificates and burial permits, the Hubers apparently had violated state health regulations.

Nazis Claim Forces Near Swedish Border, Almost Cutting Norway in Half

Envoy Believes Greenland and Iceland are Safe

Britain or Canada Will Not Act Unless Germany Attempts Seizure

Washington—(AP)—Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, said today neither Britain nor Canada would move into Greenland or Iceland unless it seemed certain Germany was about to attempt to seize the islands.

Lothian made this statement to reporters at the state department after a talk with officials there.

"Greenland might make a good air-base for Germany," he added, "but they could never maintain it. We could give them a knockout blow there without any trouble."

The ambassador expressed belief that Greenland "comes clearly within the Monroe doctrine, being in the western hemisphere." He said the status of Iceland was probably different.

British Troops Reported on Danish Islands; Chamberlain Says Reich Must be 'Crushed'

London—(AP)—Britain announced today she had landed troops on the Danish Faroe islands as Prime Minister Chamberlain, in a fighting speech, declared Britain's resolve to "crush" Germany.

The arrival of a British expeditionary force in the Danish possessions between Scotland and Iceland, was announced to the house of commons by R. A. Butler, under-secretary of foreign affairs.

Before Britain thus fulfilled the plan made public last week by her first lord of the admiralty, Winston Churchill, the governor of the Faroe islands agreed to the British intervention to prevent German forces from establishing themselves there, Butler said.

He said he had no statement to make at present about Greenland.

Chamberlain spoke to the free church council but later, in the house, made only the brief announcement that commons would debate tomorrow on the questions of strategic location of Britain's wartime industrial plants. He did not make a statement on the war's progress which some had expected today in commons.

Assails "Mad Dog"

The prime minister told the churchmen that Germany's invasion of Norway and Denmark showed that "no people, however meek, however peaceful, however harmless they may be, can be safe until this mad dog is destroyed."

He repeated his recent declaration of confidence that "the month of June will see the end of the war."

Assert German Soldiers are Within 3 Miles of Frontier

SURPRISE MOVE

British and Norwegians Say They are Occupying Narvik

Stockholm—(AP)—Rushing on an extra train through a district still held by Norwegians, German troops were reported today to have reached the Storlien heights three miles from the Swedish border and about 50 miles east of the Norwegian port of Trondheim.

(The report, if true, indicates that Germany almost has succeeded in cutting Norway in half at her narrow waist.)

Storlien is in Sweden, but the heights extend across the border.)

Reports reaching the Stockholm paper Allehanda said the German advance was made possible by the Nazi coup in pushing the train through the Norwegian area.

It was said here that the railway employees, apparently received false information and thought the German train was a Norwegian troop train.

The Germans thus passed the Norwegian fortress at Hegra, which is not of much value in the present conflict because its guns are pointed eastward—toward Sweden.

Claim Narvik

British and Norwegian troops were reported in joint possession of Narvik today after driving its German defenders back into the hills, where they were said to be occupying a precarious position.

Recapture of the important Arctic shipping center was announced by Norwegian military headquarters, which added that British soldiers and marines, equipped with light artillery, had landed at several other points on Norway's west coast.

(In Berlin, official quarters conceded that the British might have effected landings in Norway, but denied that any points occupied by Nazi troops had fallen into allied hands.)

The Norwegian communists gave no details of the action around Narvik, but unofficial sources said German forces which had held the town since last Tuesday had retreated along the railway leading to the Swedish border about 20 miles away at that point.

The same sources said Norwegian troops were maneuvering to surround the Germans.

Report Nazis in Sweden

There were unconfirmed reports that some of the Germans had crossed the frontier and been entered by Swedish authorities.

The Norwegian high command's announcement of the recapture of Narvik was accompanied by a government broadcast expressing confidence that with the aid of Britain and France "we shall win back Norway for the Norwegian people."

At the same time, the Norwegian government published a resume of Germany's original demands for complete submission, which it said were received only after Nazi armed forces had actually begun to invade Norway.

German Demands

The principal demands listed were:

1. Issuance of a proclamation ordering the Norwegian army and the public not to resist.
2. All military buildings and coastal fortresses to be delivered intact to Germany.
3. All communications to be maintained at Germany's disposition.
4. Export of war materials from Norway to be halted.
5. All radio stations to be turned over to Germany and the press informed.

Family Is Saved When Home Burns

Fire at Bear Creek Discovered When Child Awakens Mother

Bear Creek—The family of Eugene Surpre, Jr., route 1, Bear Creek, was saved from burning to death early this morning when Mrs. Surpre was awakened by one of the children and discovered the second floor of the home in flames. She roused the family, sleeping on the first floor, and they, with the aid of neighbors, succeeded in removing some of the household furnishings and personal effects before the home was destroyed.

Awakened by the cry of the child about 2 o'clock this morning, Mrs. Surpre noted it was comparatively light outside but thought it was the result of a headlight on a nearby train. When the glow continued, she investigated, and found the fire well underway. The Bear Creek fire department was summoned and succeeded in preventing the flames from spreading to other buildings.

The loss, which was not estimated, is partially covered by insurance. Sparks from the chimney were believed to have started the blaze.

Accused Attorney Files Answer in State High Court

Asserts Any Violation of Rules of Legal Ethics Was 'Unwitting'

Madison—(AP)—Attorney N. R. Torrison of Manitowish, accused of unethical professional conduct, has filed an answer with the state supreme court denying any wrong doing.

The board of state bar commissioners in a complaint filed Feb. 28 accused Torrison of assisting Fay Thorne, former Two Rivers policeman, in defrauding a creditor, Erna Griep, of approximately $3,500 and aiding Thorne in evading alimony payments to his wife, Kathryn.

He also was charged with unduly delaying payment of a judgment of $431.59 to Chester and Irene Wiltgen of Manitowish, and of offering money to Emil Peterik, from whom the judgment was won, to say that he (Peterik) had not paid it.

Guided by Conscience

"If I acted in bad taste or against the rules of legal ethics," Torrison said in reply to the fraud charge, "I did so unwittingly, and at all times acted according to the dictates of my conscience and did not know then or now how I erred."

In answer to the alimony accusation, Torrison, who had obtained $3,300 in back pay for Thorne from the city of Two Rivers, said it was an "unfortunate situation," but that it was necessary to turn it over to Thorne, instead of paying Mrs. Thorne's claim, to "avoid possible criminal charges directed against myself."

Torrison said he made a "satisfactory" settlement with the Wiltgens Jan. 2, 1939, and did not delay payment or offer Peterik money to conceal payment of the judgment.

Two other attorneys, Darrell D. MacIntyre and J. Philip Koberstein, both of Madison, were accused of unprofessional conduct at the same time. Koberstein, charged with subornation of perjury and other unethical practice, has denied all charges. MacIntyre is expected to file his answer this week.

Favored Shooting Of Congressmen

Witness Says Defendant, But Not Christian Front, Advocated Murder

New York—(AP)—Denis A. Healy, chief government witness, testified in federal court today that John F. Cassidy, one of 16 men on trial on charges of plotting to overthrow the government, told him "the Christian front would not openly advocate shooting the congressmen who had voted to amend the arms embargo act."

"But in his opinion they should be shot," Healy said Cassidy declared at a basement meeting Nov. 4 in the city home.

"He didn't say how the congressmen should be shot," asked former Magistrate Leo Healy, of defense counsel.

"No."

"By rifle, pistol or machine-gun?"

"He didn't say."

Although they talked revolution, Healy said, they frequently listened to lectures by William Gerald Bishop, one of the defendants, who talked to them about numerology, pantheism, monism, occultism, medieval philosophy, Freud and Schopenhauer, the Cabala and various kinds of communism.

Healy said Bishop assigned two men to steal 30,000 rounds of ammunition Nov. 8 from Fort Dix, N. J., and Bishop told Healy he was "holding me for another job."

Reich Has Lost Nearly One-Third of Her Navy, French Premier States

Paris—(AP)—Premier Paul Reynaud told the French senate today that Germany had lost almost one-third of her navy in the last week of fighting in Scandinavian waters.

Specific figures, the premier declared, are, officially, 30 per cent of the Nazi navy, including 20 per cent of Germany's cruisers and 25 per cent of her destroyers.

Reynaud placed the Nazi sea losses at 78,000 tons during the last week when, he said, the allied navies had lost "not a single pound." (He evidently referred to British and French merchant shipping.)

This amount of military and merchant German shipping, the premier declared, has been either sunk, scuttled or captured.

The senators stood and cheered when Reynaud referred to President Roosevelt's pan-American speech yesterday.

"No one asks whom Roosevelt meant when he said he condemned force," the premier said.

He mentioned Roosevelt by name and his statement brought prolonged applause from all benches.

No Sign of Foul Play In Death at Two Rivers

Two Rivers—(AP)—District Attorney Patrick Dewane and Police Chief John J. Reban reported to the city council last night that there was no evidence of foul play in the death of Walter Jindra, 47, municipal filtration plant operator.

Jindra's body was found in a filter tank March 27. A coroner's jury found that death was due to drowning.

Stockholm Newspaper Says Germans Reached Oslo Only Because Norse Were Betrayed

Stockholm—(AP)—German forces occupying Oslo never could have reached the Norwegian capital had not Norway been betrayed by some among her defenders, the newspaper Social Demokraten contended today.

Quoting Norwegian military sources, particularly officers of the little Norwegian minelayer Olav Tryggvason, the newspaper told this story:

Only the Olav Tryggvason stood in the way to keep three German cruisers, the Blucher, Emden and Karlsruhe, from reaching Oslo after coastal batteries had sunk the battleship Gneisenau when the Germans invaded Norway just a week ago.

(The Germans have admitted losing the Blucher and Karlsruhe, but not the Emden and Gneisenau.)

The minelayer opened fire when the cruisers were about 5,500 yards distant.

Two shots reached the Emden's ammunition stores. The cruiser exploded violently and sank within a minute.

The Karlsruhe, following in the Emden's wake, was hit three times and sank.

A third cruiser still going on, the Olav Tryggvason's commander received evidently false orders from the commander of the Horten fortress saying that King Haakon had instructed surrender.

Because of this and other false orders, the fortresses at Horten and Oskarborg surrendered, eliminating what naval experts said would have been impenetrable barriers to Oslo.

The Social Demokraten said there were reports that the Norwegian 3,858-ton coast defense ship Tordenskjold was in the harbor at Horten when the Germans attacked. The commander at Horten, it declared, must have known what was coming because 200 of the Tordenskjold's crew was ordered ashore, leaving aboard only 15.

The heaviest Norwegian warship in Oslo fjord, therefore, was out of the action.

When Fred Decides To Move Something, Things Really Move

Menasha—When Fred Olson, 394 Walnut street, attempted to move Clarence Kemmeter's car Monday afternoon, he really moved things, including two other cars, a portion of a garage, and part of the Kemmeter grocery, 303 Ahnaip street.

Clarence Kemmeter's car, a 1940 model, was parked west of the grocery store where Earl Block was washing it. Olson started to move the car a few feet so that he could get at a ladder.

He lost control of the car and it swung around to the south side of the store where it struck a car owned by Herbert Meyer, 405 Walnut street, continued around the building until it hit a garage at the east of the store, and nicked a car owned by John Kemmeter, parked near the garage. It finally stopped when it struck near the front of the east side of the store. Police Chief Alex Slomski reported this morning.

The Clarence Kemmeter and Herbert Meyer cars were extensively damaged on the front ends while the John Kemmeter car was slightly damaged. Both the garage and the store were damaged in the accident. Aside from a slight knee injury, Fred emerged unscathed.

Dewey Has 7-Point Program to Bring Business to Life

Says National Economy Has Gone Backward Under Roosevelt

Indianapolis — (AP) — Thomas E. Dewey headed for Oklahoma City today after enunciating a seven-point program "to bring business enterprise to life in this country."

The New York district attorney, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, spoke in the Butler University field house last night before a throng which he himself estimated at 17,000.

"Under the Roosevelt administration," he said, "the national economy has gone backward."

"Once we have shaken off the defeatism and bungling bureaucracy of the New Deal we can start to repair the damage it has done," Dewey added.

"It is time to stop politics and go back to work," he said in introducing his seven points. They are:

1. "Stop government policies which discourage the job-making business life of the nation."
2. "Stop bureaucratic interference with the management of honest business."
3. "Put experience, ability and fair play in the SEC and other regulatory bodies."
4. "Reorganize the tax structure so that it will no longer drive money into the bomb-proof shelters of tax-exempt bonds."
5. "Improve the credit facilities for small business."
6. "Put an end to government policies of defeatism, of ill-conceived experiments, of frantic improvising in domestic and foreign affairs."
7. "Learn the difference between stopping abuses and grabbing power. Learn again that this country believes in government by law and not government by men."

Work Started on Dam Rebuilding

Actual Construction Is Expected to Open Within a Week

Preliminary work on the rebuilding of Appleton's upper dam just east of the Memorial Drive bridge has been started, the United States engineer's office reported today.

J. Meyer and Sons of Oshkosh, the firm awarded the general construction contract on a bid of about $120,000, has built a coffer dam across the headrace at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company power house, runways, and is doing other work preparatory to the installation of equipment.

It is expected that the heavy construction work will start in about a week.

The new dam is being built to maintain water levels for navigation. The present dam, constructed in 1874, will be the last on the lower Fox river to be rebuilt.

Close Link Between Roosevelt and McNutt Seen in Washington

Washington — (AP) — President Roosevelt is credited by many insiders with a closer relationship to the campaign speeches of Paul V. McNutt than has appeared on the surface.

This does not mean that the president, even to McNutt, has indicated that he wants the Indianan to follow him into the White House. McNutt does not know the Roosevelt mind yet, any more than do the other candidates for the Democratic presidential nominations.

But the social security board and most of the agencies in the security administration, which McNutt heads, were pet projects of Mr. Roosevelt. It is unlikely that he would fail to keep an eye on their progress or any suggestions for their change.

Quite a few of McNutt's speeches have dealt with the security administration. It is highly improbable that a speech dealing with the future policy of an agency in which the president is keenly interested would be made without first having been read by Mr. Roosevelt. Many speeches of policy-making officials of the government are routed through the White House.

This does not mean that McNutt's speeches are written at the White House. But it does appear certain that the White House is keeping watch for any variance from Roosevelt ideas on social security.

Nazis Say Their Troops are Near Swedish Frontier

structed to carry only information approved by German authorities.

6. Suspension of all maritime commerce air service, with the understanding that shipping to German and neutral Baltic ports might be resumed later.

7. Delivery to Germany of charts showing the location of all Norwegian mine fields.

Seize Munitions Plants

German reports on military developments in southern Norway said that Nazi troops had captured 300 Norwegian soldiers near Oslo and had seized powder, munitions plants and arms.

The German-controlled broadcasting station at Oslo announced that Major Vidkun Quisling had resigned as premier of the puppet government and had been replaced by Province Governor Ingolf Elster Christensen.

The broadcast said Quisling had been named chief of Norwegian demobilization and said a governmental committee had been established to take the lead in administering German-occupied areas.

Charge Betrayal

Norwegian soldiers fleeing across the southern frontier into Sweden told correspondents they had been betrayed by their officers and were prevented by lack of equipment from putting up a fight.

Many of the soldiers said they had been without food since the German invasion began a week ago.

West of Oslo, heavy fighting was reported in the woods near Kongsvinger, which already has been occupied by German troops.

Swedish authorities announced that the crews of seven Norwegian planes which had crossed the frontier and landed in Sweden had been interned.

Sweden continued to take strict emergency measures to guard against surprise, warning the public by posters against spreading rumors or believing unconfirmed reports.

WARNING TO KING

Berlin — (AP) — Germany, giving King Haakon VII of Norway a warning to save his throne by dealing with a new Nazi-supported government at Oslo, declared that the monarch was a "captive" of a Norwegian clique and out of touch with his people.

High German sources, through the official news agency, DNB, declared that Haakon's recent radio appeal to his people to fight for "freedom" either was British propaganda, or meant that the king was misguided by his advisers.

Oslo came word today that a new government commission had been named to succeed Major Vidkun Quisling, who proclaimed himself Norwegian premier, after the king and the government fled the Norwegian capital ahead of the invading Germans a week ago.

The same dispatch told of resistance by young Norwegians who, as the Germans put it, believed they had the "right" to fight Germany. It was said that they were liable to the death sentence under German military law.

Germany announced that her forces in Norway had blown up a Norwegian radio station at Notodden, 50 miles southwest of Oslo, which in the last few days had made anti-German broadcasts.

The German high command communique pictured the consolidation of positions in Norway as progressing on schedule, but by way of Stockholm came reports that a British land force and Norwegian troops were in joint control of Narvik, one part and originally northernmost point of Germany's control in Norway.

Sidewalk Built for Children at Village

Construction of about three-quarters of a mile of sidewalk is being completed on the north side of County Trunk Z from the Combined Locks school west to the village limits. About 3,000 yards of dirt fill were used for a base for the sidewalk. The sidewalk is being installed by the village as a safety measure, according to Martin Williams, village president, and makes it unnecessary for children to walk on the highway.

Alleged Holdup Man Is Injured in Crash

Berlin — (AP) — A man identified by Police Chief Lute Merrill of Princeton, as Wilford Mills, 28, of that city, was in critical condition today with injuries suffered in an automobile crash after a five-hour chase.

Chief Merrill declared that Mills had held up two places at Princeton and one at Endeavor, and that the car had been stolen at a creamery near Princeton.

The automobile overturned on a road near Watoma yesterday while being chased by sheriffs Leo Bartol of Green Lake county, and Robert Boyson of Waushara county. The pursuit led from Green Lake county through Marquette county into Waushara county.

Chief Merrill said an undetermined amount was taken in the holdup of a resort at Endeavor, that $5 was obtained at a Princeton barber shop and nothing at an appliance store there.

Hungarian 'Ragged Guard' Now Fighting in Arctic Circle in Norwegian Mountain Passes

Budapest — (AP) — In Norwegian mountain passes, far up in the Arctic circle, volunteers from peaceful Hungary, known as "the ragged guard," are reported fighting in their third war in eight months.

Norway, proud Magyars say, has become another crusade for this Hungarian band, a small group of perhaps 400 men, that already has campaigned for Poland and Finland.

Three days after the invasion of Scandinavia these Hungarian riflemen were reported to have crossed from Finland and to have offered their services to Norwegian army commanders.

Officially, the Hungarian government does not recognize these citizens fighting on foreign battlefields, but most Hungarians follow with keen interest the continued exploits of this free corps. The Rongyos Garda, whose name literally means "the ragged guard."

Sales Expert to Talk to Ad Club

Hal Post, one of the organizers of the Appleton Advertising club and now a nationally known sales specialist, will speak at a public meeting of the club at a dinner meeting at 6:15 Wednesday evening at the Conway hotel.

Renewed Fighting

Then a year ago the organization sprang to martial life. Germany was breaking up Czechoslovakia in March, 1939, and the eastern tip of that unhappy country, Ruthenia, was coveted by empire builders from all sides. It had once belonged to Hungary. It was Hungary's chance to get a common frontier with Poland.

As Czech and Ruthenian nationalists fought one another, the Hungarians fought their matching orders. But ahead of the army slipped small companies of armed men in fur hats, knee-high boots and sheepskin coats—the Rongyos Garda.

They risked execution as spies to cut Czech communication lines, surprise key outposts and wage skirmishes throughout the chaotic region. The army, though it took no official cognizance of the free corps, found its task surprisingly lightened. Ruthenia fell to Hungary.

Allies, Germans Continue Preparations for Battle For Possession of Norway

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York — (AP) — Allies and Germans alike continue to strain every nerve in their drive to prepare for the inevitable land and air battle for possession of Norway.

The day of bloody reckoning among Norway's towering mountains is approaching, but thus far the only actual clash between allied expeditionary foot-soldiers which have been landed and the occupying Germans has been at the far northern port of Narvik.

Here the British, in cooperation with Norwegian contingents, are said to have driven the Nazis back into the hills.

The English landing operations have been shrouded in secrecy, but apparently the Britons haven't yet tried to fight their way ashore at such strategic southern ports as Trondheim or Bergen. If they had we should have heard the sounds of conflict.

Trondheim looks to me like a logical point for an allied attack soon. It is a highly-important port and rail-head giving access to the southern part of the country.

The capture of Narvik is of great value potentially but it is of little assistance in bringing the allies into the vital area south of the towering mountains, for Narvik has no direct communications by land with southern Norway.

Terminus of Railroad

It is, however, the terminus of the railroad running to the famous Swedish iron mines which precipitated the battle of Norway, because of their vital importance to the Germans. Possession of this railway will be of high importance to the allies for movement of troops and supplies into Sweden in event that country is invaded by the Nazis in a double effort to support their invasion of Norway and secure the Swedish iron mines.

The British have a considerable way to go to get their troops into the southern area. However, they are proceeding with the methodical thoroughness for which they are famous.

Expeditionary troops are moving across the North sea in a steady stream, but because they would be merely useless sacrifices without their supporting equipment and supplies, they are accompanied by their ships. Once they are ashore they will be set for business in the dogged British way.

Meanwhile heavy air operations continue. The allies have been paying particular attention to Stavanger, and the meaning of this is that it has a big airport which is the only efficient Norwegian base for large-scale Nazi attacks on England. Moreover, Stavanger is the terminus of the German transport planes which are rushing troops and supplies to the support of their invading forces.

Conflict May Spread

There is no indication that the Anglo-French brotherhood has encountered any setback in their highly-successful operations since Hitler's lightning assault on this small country which wasn't expecting any attack.

Continued allied success in the battle of Norway to my mind can mean anything else than that as Adolf Hitler sees his great gamble sinking into a terribly costly defeat.

Gantter Will Begin Duties As Mayor, Name New Committees

Kaukauna — William J. Gantter, elected mayor by a plurality of 64 votes over Lewis F. Nelson, incumbent, will take the mayor's chair tonight as the common council holds its annual reorganization meeting. The session will open at 7 o'clock at the municipal building.

The council will transact regular and unfinished business, adjourn and reconvene with Gantter in the chair. Gantter said this morning he would make his appointments to the council standing committees and various commissions tonight.

It is understood the project will be done with WPA assistance.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — One last gab about my recent p. a. tour, and I'll dismiss the subject. I want to answer the many actors who have smirked: "Maybe you'll be a bit more lenient toward 'the profession' now that you've had a little personal experience."

If they're insinuating that I intend being less critical, they're mistaken. On my hop I was hammered by the critics, unmercifully — and deservedly. I'm not now, and never hope to be, even a passable actor — and it is I insist (for the sake of man) on putting myself on the chopping block, then I have no right to howl when the ax starts falling.

But the fact that I've been "taking it" isn't going to cause me to sugar my remarks about inferior performances of others. Acting is the world's highest paid profession. Those in it should be proficient enough to give the public its money's worth — or else be willing to take deserved pannings.

It seems to me that a sincere actor would be wiser if, instead of resenting criticism, he would welcome it, analyze it fairly — and try to capitalize on any constructive suggestions it contains. I think our few really fine actors DO welcome criticism. I've seen Paul Muni, Bette Davis and Spencer Tracy, for instance, listen respectfully to the hammer blows and benefit by them. Invariably, it's the hams who bridle and flame when the critics fail to laud their tender feelings with soft soap.

PERSONAL OBSERVATIONS: Virginia Bruce's eyes are always sad, even though her lips may be smiling. Seasonal warning: Don't say "ish" to Guy Kibbey unless you're prepared to listen. Lettie Lyons, of "Scandals" fame, gets my vote for the screwy hat champion-ship. It's an unwise interviewer who takes Wally Beery's invariable "Aw, write anything you want to" at face value. I like Carole Lombard's nonchalant habit of puffing back stray locks. Add in-a-chair sprawlers. One Ameche, Frances Dee's quick smile is an ideal pick-me-up for gloomy days.

ODD-FORMATION: During mid-summer filming of "snow" scenes, studios keep doctors on the set to guard against heat-prostration, often induced by the players' heavy top. ... Credit casting director with a home run: Moroni Olsen, currently playing in "Brigham Young," is really a Mormon and was named for the Angel of the Revelation. ... Researchers for Paramount's "I Want a Divorce" have compiled statistics proving that the average cost of divorce has dropped, in the past 25 years, from $2500 to $400.

MASS MURDERS, INC.

Sparafucile, the paid assassin in Verdi's immortal Rigoletto, looked at his sister in astonishment when she, somewhat enamored at the sight of the next victim for whose death 20 golden crowns had been paid, suggested letting him live and killing a buffoon instead in fulfillment of the contract.

Then while the orchestra crashed, Sparafucile burst with indignation into song:
"Kill the buffoon! What nonsense have you said?
Am I a thief? Have I ever lost my honor?
Is there a client that I have betrayed?
I must not break my faith. This man has paid."

Comparing the killers of medieval days with the operators of Mass Murders, Inc., recently exposed in Brooklyn, we find a degeneration in the intervening generations.

The evidence already exposed along the Hudson presents for sheer callousness the most vicious picture simply because no wolfish characteristic has been omitted.

The first man to sing at Brooklyn—although not in grand opera—was Abe Reles, a short, piggy featured man, dressed in flashy clothes, adorned with heavy jewels upon pudgy fingers, a notorious hoodlum whose swaggering and bullying manners and methods betrayed his mental inferiority.

Although hardly past thirty years of age Reles has a police record of 41 arrests which produced only four short sentences.

Reles didn't carry a wad of bills big enough to choke an ox and always wrapped with one of a thousand dollar denomination, nor claim with a sinister wink close connections to the powers that be without apparent reason. On seldom occasions did Reles get outside the jurisdiction of the district where he felt secure but once he fell into the hands of a judge who said of him:

"This fellow is brave enough to stab in the back, or shoot a defenseless person, and, with a gang supporting him, might kick an invalid or a near invalid."

No one in Brooklyn doubts for a moment that on the 41 occasions when Reles was arrested he was guilty just 41 times. But a police force that is in politics up to its eyes, examining magistrates who are practically appointed by ward committees although their title to position is signed by the mayor, the Jimmy Hines and the Jimmy Walkers, the applause and position seekers, have encouraged Mass Murders, Inc. by their soft-handed methods just as effectively as if they were in on the blood.

The extreme and loathsome barbarity of this outfit was at last its undoing. It hired killers and then it killed the killers. Instead of permitting its henchmen to pile up in their memories a long list of its crimes it operated like a slow moving juggernaut, crushing its agents, and, with them, it believed, the evidence of its guilt. Then it hired new assassins whose days were numbered as soon as their work began.

But this cunning method of insuring its safety by wiping out witnesses continued until its new killers began adding together the odd disappearance of their predecessors, and finally came to conclusions at once fearsome and sound.

That is why Gangy Cohen fled immediately after he delivered an assassination. He didn't stay long enough to return in the same car but took to the woods and kept going until he got to Hollywood where he was apprehended.

Brooklyn, it should be remembered, was just cleaned out last fall of a prosecutor who talking glowingly about saving taxpayers money, lived a straight life, cussed out the cursed cocktail, but took the gang's votes and money and was content to permit coarse hoodlums to terrorize his community so long as he could continue in power.

When Brooklyn finally became sufficiently angered at the law's paralyzing hand and elected a two-fisted fellow who hated crime, those left in Mass Murders, Inc. started running for the prosecutor's office and began singing before they got the door open.

The great fault in America still is the comparative ease with which a good natured and well intended populace go off the track when they are selecting men for critical and difficult positions by casting their votes whimsically or emotionally and thus ineffectively.

By far the most important single factor in protection of the public from crime is an able prosecutor who is above influence.

ENGLAND IS CLEVER AND LONGSIGHTED

There are two standards from which we may judge a conflict. One involves our sympathies or emotions which may be affected seriously by our like or dislike of either of the contestants. The other is the cold matter-of-fact weighing of each job or campaign of those involved.

The American reaction to carrying the blood bath to Norway was one of great indignation—first, because of admiration of the Norwegian people and the placid mind-your-own-business nation they have created, and second, because Hitler in his person, in his demagoguery, in his purges and intolerance and in his broken promises, stands for Beelzebub on this earth.

But it is far from certain that the English government, despite its natural sympathy for the Norwegian people, is unhappy because of the turn events have taken. Britain knows full well the value in such a conflict of a major faux pas on the part of Germany such as its attack upon the Belgians in 1914. It may even be, and quite likely is, that the English government was perfectly willing to prod Berlin into doing something that would characterize it again in the world's eyes as a great and soulless marauder recklessly on the march.

Expert advisers claim that Germany must have Swedish ore or perish. Certainly Germany has been taking a full 14 million tons annually of the Swedish mines. And it did not seem that it would continue to receive this iron laden earth unless it could continue down the Norwegian coast with part of it. In fact over half has constantly been transported in that manner.

According to international law any nation that takes a war into the 3-mile high seas zone of any other nation violates the neutrality of that nation. England deliberately violated Norway's neutrality when it attacked the Altmork and actually drove her ashore in order to reclaim the English prisoners of war. When she planted her mine fields directly adjacent to the Norwegian coast she violated Norwegian rights again. Her purpose was to prevent the Germans getting the ore. She tried to force the ore ships out beyond the 3-mile limit so she could destroy them. She must have realized that if the ore is Germany's life blood the Reich would have no alternative to overcome her violations of Norwegian neutrality excepting by seizing Norway.

And right there is where England is almighty clever. She has violated the rules of international law as much or more than Berlin. But she does not violate them in a way to sacrifice life. Property violations may be paid for or the resentment created by them mollified in some manner. But blood leaves a horrible and everlasting stain.

In World War No. 1 England violated American rights perhaps five times as much as Germany did. But she didn't take American lives. In the present war she has violated our rights no end. Her very impudence in making our vessels to the Mediterranean put into some port of hers for search is exasperating and might have led to bloodshed 50 or 100 years ago. But today democracies at least do not go to war over temporary situations of which settlement may be otherwise made.

If Germany loses the campaign in Norway she will not only be hateful in the eyes of all neutrals because of the Norwegian blood spilt but she will have lost considerable prestige, particularly with Mussolini, who, like a medieval bandit, is watching for a good opportunity to grab some swag.

And if Germany is successful in Norway she will have obtained her indispensable ore supply but will have added to the world's rising tide of antipathy toward her methods and her rulers.

England is no good at a short campaign. As a planner a long ways down the future she has almost second sight.

NOTE TO AGGRESSORS

The record of the English sparrow as now recounted by a naturalist association might well be brought to the attention of aggressor nations. The sparrow was introduced to America around 1850 to eat caterpillars that were destroying New England shade trees. The sparrows multiplied too fast and became nuisances, killing off song birds. But now they are becoming soft. Native birds are fighting back more effectively. A recent bird census indicates the sparrow is being starved out and is not being assimilated.

SPRINGTIME OF FRIENDSHIP

Just yesterday there was no burgeoning To herald the approach of joyful Spring. But now green carpets cover all the earth, And blossoms climb to glorious rebirth.

Just yesterday our friendship had not flowered. The blessing of your spirit was not showered Upon my life. The days were bare of bloom; My heart was heavy with a shroud of gloom.

Now like the Springtime, Friendship comes with bright

Immortal flowers for the soul's delight, Bringing to futile days the blossoming Of Hope, and calling bluebirds home to sing.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—Boiled down to the most brutal fundamentals, the Norwegian war amounts to this: If the British lose it, they also lose the world war.

This may seem like harsh and hasty deduction, but it is based upon the fact that all the other nations of Europe, particularly Italy, are watching the outcome of this battle to see on which side they will jump.

The Germans succeed in holding Norway, every small nation in Southeast Europe will figure that the might of the British Empire is broken, that the time has come to cuddle up to its successor.

But more important, you can write it down as certain that unless Britain wins in Norway, Italy will come into this war within approximately one month.

Almost every dispatch which the state department lays upon the White House desk indicates that Mussolini is getting ready for this plunge.

Real fact is that the Italian people are by no means in love with Hitler. Nor are they in love with the allies—though they probably like Hitler less. However, Mussolini never was a man to worry about the Italian people, and regardless of popular sentiment, he can take Italy into the war any time he wants to.

U. S. observers are confident that he will do so, probably jumping first into North Africa the minute he sees that Hitler is victorious in Scandinavia.

Note—What many people do not realize in gauging this war is that Italy and Russia were on the side of the allies in the last war, but even so it took four years plus the very powerful help of the United States before Germany surrendered—with her troops still on French soil. In this war, the alignment is far different, which is why Italy can tip the balance.

WEIRD REORGANIZATION
Just two weeks ago the air lines of the United States celebrated their first year without a single fatality. It was a national landmark in transportation, and thousands of congratulatory messages poured in upon the Civil Aeronautics Authority, which had contributed so materially to this record. Among those messages was one from President Roosevelt personally to able CAA Chairman Robert Hinkley.

Hinkley and his four associates had taken hold of a broken-down, politics-ridden agency which was so scandal-soaked that congress wrenched it out of the department of commerce and forced the administration to accept it as an independent commission. And in two short years CAA commissioners made it one of the model agencies of the New Deal.

But now, just two weeks after the brilliant no-fatality air record, the Civil Aeronautics authority finds itself right back where it started. It has been dumped into the lap of the commerce department, with Chairman Hinkley and his capable colleagues shorn of their power.

All this was done through the latest government reorganization messages to congress. And believe it or not, but Harry Hopkins, boss of the commerce department, did not know fifteen minutes in advance that he was to take back the aeronautics authority. Furthermore, there seems to be some doubt whether the president knew that the CAA was being transferred to the commerce department.

For when outraged friends of Chairman Hinkley went to the White House to find out what the transfer was about, Roosevelt was just as blank as they.

"Why, I thought we were giving Bob (Hinkley) control of the whole CAA," he said.

WHO RULES REORGANIZATION
All of this brings up the very important question of who is writing the government reorganization orders with which the president has been peppering congress. Chief masterminds are:

Louis Brownlow, an affable ex-newspaperman, city manager of Petersburg, Va., and Knoxville, Tenn., who now operates the public administration clearing house in Chicago. It was Brownlow who wrote the president's reorganization bill.

William H. McReynolds, who for 34 years has been wound up in government red tape in the post office, the now defunct bureau of efficiency, the budget bureau, and the Farm Credit administration; and who finally was sold to Roosevelt by his pal Henry Morgenthau. McReynolds now is a member of the enlarged White House secretariat.

Both men, it is interesting to note, are close friends of Clinton M. Hester, CAA administrator and another government careerist. During his career, Hester became familiar with red tape all the way up to the interior department to the treasury, including the shipping board, alien property custodian, and justice department, where he ran into a storm with the late Mrs. Homer Cummings.

Hester, as administrator of the CAA, was kept under rein by Chairman Hinkley. But suddenly, friends Brownlow and McReynolds inserted in their first reorganization of the CAA a deft provision whereby most of Hinkley's powers suddenly were transferred to Hester. They put this plan under the president's nose, he signed it, and overnight Hester became czar of the CAA.

But not for long. Perhaps worried over the resultant storm plus knowledge that Chairman Hinkley would resign, they wrote a new reorganization message for the White House. This time they transferred civil aeronautics back to the commerce department and old-fashioned politics.

Thus in two weeks and for no apparent reason came two reorganizations of an agency which had just chalked up one of the most notable records of the New Deal. And all of this has been done by a reform measure supposed to streamline government.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Chester Thompson, genial new head of the government-owned Inland Waterways corporation, doesn't believe in remote control. He has moved his agency's headquarters from its flossy offices in Washington to the river docks at St. Louis. Thompson also has lopped off $75,000 in top salaries. . . . Representative Lawrence Conboy, scrappy Massachusetts New Dealer, is threatening an investigation of the labor department for its admittance of a large number of Czech shoe workers for the new Batu plant in Maryland. . . . National Youth Administration Aubrey Williams is one New Dealer who has Republican defenders. When he was criticized by several Democratic congressmen, a number of GOP members leaped to their feet and lauded him, plus his NYA.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT
Washington—A slow stream of capitalites are sitting around biting their finger nails, waiting to see what the census has to report on the migrants.

You could live in any one of two dozen states and think this report a minor item, but don't fool yourself.

Let's take Oklahoma, for example. (There's really no particular reason why we should, except that John Steinbeck has popularized the conception of migrants from that state.) Ever since the "Grapes" made the nation migrant-conscious, Oklahoma has been privileged to laugh up its sleeve at California.

"We are getting rid of a lot of surplus labor—a burden of relief—at the expense of California. Ha-ha," the Oklahomans might say.

Mind you, I say they might say. This is purely a hypothetical item. And since I know what they do say, I'm not putting it in here. I'm only saying that they might well say that. But when the reports are in, California may have the last laugh.

Why?

I'll tell you.

Nobody Knows
Estimates here—and they are purely estimates—because nobody really knows the migrant situation—are that Oklahoma has lost 50,000 tenant farm families in the last few years. Estimates again are that there are about four persons to a family. That means, if there is anything in estimates, that Oklahoma has lost 200,000 persons.

Oklahoma's population in 1930 was 2,386,000. Its increase from 1920 was 368,000. It is definitely established that Oklahoma's rate of increase in population during the 1930-40 decade was one of the largest in the country. But eliminate 200,000 persons lost by migration and you have a comparatively static population.

What happens then? While other states gain or maintain their representation in Congress on a basis of reapportionment, Oklahoma may stand still or lose. While other states get more money for highways from the federal government, Oklahoma may have to string along on what it has been getting. While the states which have been the mecca of the "Okies" and "Arkies" get increases in relief funds from Washington, Oklahoma may have to sweat through with less than it has been receiving. And the point is that the problem there may be no different from what it is today, or has been for many months.

Story's Many Sides

I have chosen Oklahoma because the Steinbeck story has made available estimates from that state. As a matter of fact, the Dakotas probably would provide more sensational figures if government agencies had carried through their investigations in those states. There are, it is claimed, some 350,000 migrant families in the country (this is a conservative estimate—some investigators will bet a hat that there are 1,000,000). And the national average size of family will probably run one-half to one more person than in Oklahoma. That means that only 11 to 17 percent of the migrants come from Oklahoma. So you can see that this condition is not confined to the state selected here for illustration.

The point is that somebody is going to take it on the chin when the census is in and a good many observers think that it will be the states that have been losing their jobs.

This is only one facet of the many-sided farm labor situation which the 1940 census probably will uncover. Any time that an employer, be he green-grocer or insurance man, banker or florist, gets to thinking that this doesn't affect him he should run around and have a talk with some competent college professor.

No matter whose figures you take on unemployment, there are about 1,500,000 more farm workers than there are permanent farm jobs. Farm workers, out of work, mean shifting populations—and shifting populations mean a terrific upheaval in existing laws intended to distribute equitably our Federal funds and the eyes-and-nails that make up our Federal government.

Now you know why a slew of capitalites are worrying about the census report on migrants. They want to be sure they are not chewing on grapes of wrath and calling it strawberry shortcake.

MOVING OLD HOUSES

Appleton Post-Crescent: Will you please print the following in your Peoples Forum.

Being a property owner in the 1200 block on West Winnebago street in the new Sixteenth ward I would like to voice my disapproval, and several of my neighbors, of the moving of any more old houses into this district. When there are old houses that have to be moved I think they should be moved to an older section of the city. The owner should also have to put up a bond that the old house will be remodeled to the extent of having the outside appearance of a new one and the same completed within a reasonable length of time.

As to the interior construction we have no complaint as this inspection is covered by ordinance both as to plumbing, heating, wiring and fire and in a very efficient and courteous manner.

I believe in most cases that the

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—The nub of the current argument between Wisconsin county government spokesmen on the one hand and state and federal pension officials, on the other, is the latter's insistence that a civil service system for county pension department will be meaningless without compulsory salary uniformity between counties.

Perhaps there is logic to that claim, but it is pretty obvious that the claimants are opening up an easy rebuttal for their opponents on county boards, for despite the fact that the Wisconsin state government has one of the oldest civil service systems in the country, there is almost as much variation in salaries between state departments as there is, say, between the salaries paid by some of the wealthier industrial counties and such poor rural counties as Burnett or Florence.

GLARING
From the top brackets in the state service, down to the most humble classifications, there are glaring discrepancies in salaries paid for similar work and similar responsibilities. The classic example has been the payment by the University of Wisconsin, a division of the state government, of a salary of between $8,000 and $9,000 to its business manager, and the payment of the state government to its general business manager, the budget director, of a salary of $5,000.

The inconsistency of salary scales between educational and administrative divisions of the state government can be illustrated many more times. Department heads at the university, called deans, get salaries higher than anyone else on the administrative staffs of the state government. In several cases, deans' salaries are twice those paid to capitol executives with bigger staffs, bigger budgets, more extensive jurisdictions.

There are girls employed at the capitol whose desks are separated by a corridor, who do precisely the same kind of work, who have the same record of service in point of years, but whose salaries vary as much as $25 a month.

One explanation, as a keen-eyed department head noted the other day, is that the girl receiving a higher salary is employed by a department which always finds it relatively easy to get generous legislative appropriations.

PSC FORTUNATE

While the departments in the capitol literally have to beg for their money; others get what they want, and sometimes more than they need, without any trouble at all.

One of the latter over the years has been the public service commission, whose employees, compared with those of the other departments, have generally been treated roughly as usual, good and with a little care can be taken apart and used again in a later type of house which would be something while white and not become an eyesore to the other home owners and at about the same cost.

The several houses that I have seen moved up this way have all left their tracks. Streets cut up, limbs broken off the trees, wires cut and spliced, the movers have even used our shade trees as anchors for their heavy chains and cables.

We all want more tax paying property in the city but some of these old houses that have been cut in half and moved to a new location are not so nice to look at, especially to the family that have done everything possible to improve the outward appearance of their home.

There are unfair and unreasonable differences in pay scales at the capitol, differences which in some cases have decreased employee morale. The important point, at present, however, is that the state is in the position of demanding from the counties that it has not accomplished in its own household after 40 years of civil service.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

HYPOTHYROIDISM

You know how we doctors contrive to keep people from knowing how little we know about a disease. For instance, myxedema fruste, incomplete myxedema, hypothyroidism, hypothyroidism and hypothyroidism are different names for one condition, namely, slowing down or weakening of the function of the thyroid gland.

The thyroid gland weighs about an ounce in a man, rather more than that in a woman, in whom it enlarges somewhat during menstruation and pregnancy. It is one of the glands of internal secretion; that is, it produces a hormone which it secretes into the blood, and the thyroid hormone controls the rate of oxidation, combustion in the body, or, as we doctors and a few bright laymen call it, metabolism.

If I were a layman I'd ignore metabolism altogether. The bright ones who attempt to ponder the state of their metabolism generally make themselves ridiculous anyway. It is enough for any layman to know that basal metabolism is not related to Basil Rathbone. For that matter I doubt if practicing physician or specialist needs to know any more about it so far as the treatment of the patient is concerned, than you do.

Grant you it is impressive to wheel in the basal metabolism machine and attach it to the patient and enter the reading in the case record and the fee for the test in the bill.

Men do have hypothyroidism, and so do children in their early teens, but the condition occurs most frequently in women in their thirties, the epoch in which a woman should be at her acme in every respect.

Children with hypothyroidism generally feel tired all the time, disinclined to play as actively as they should, sleepy, languid, inattentive. They are given to moping or day-dreaming and sadness and show little of the natural gaiety and vivacity that characterizes healthy children. Both physically and mentally they develop and grow more slowly than normal children do.

One mother who thus described her daughter's case:

My 16 year old daughter has been under a doctor's care for more than a year for anemia. That was overcome under the doctor's treatment of iron etc. Her ailment was a chronic fatigue which seemed impossible to overcome. She had been ready for college several months ago but unable to go. Lately she had a metabolism test which indicated that the thyroid gland was functioning in a normal manner. Still I doubt if her doctor had been told the result has been simply unbelievable. The doctor advised me to continue it since it benefited her so much. She is starting in junior college Monday and is very happy. She was so tired that she couldn't enjoy life as other young people do.

Handsome in the matter of the size of the pay envelope.

Probably one reason for that fact is that over a long period of years anyone who questioned public service commission activities or expenditures was suspect in some political circles of being improperly partial to the public utilities.

Another department which usually manages to get what it says it needs in funds is the industrial commission, which by many observers is regarded as possessing the most powerful departmental lobby in the capitol. The industrial commission, under the generalship of veteran and canny Voyta Wra-betz, can always summon employers and labor unions to go to bat for it, to its advantage during legislative sessions.

There are unfair and unreasonable differences in pay scales at the capitol, differences which in some cases have decreased employee morale. The important point, at present, however, is that the state is in the position of demanding from the counties that it has not accomplished in its own household after 40 years of civil service.

Senior High School Ward Booster.

and now she's bubbling over most of the time.

A woman in her forties reported her experience:

I took your Iodin Ration for about a month and thought at the time I felt better. So I continued taking it according to your instructions. I have noticed these changes: hot flashes do not occur so often nor last so long. I feel much more alert in body and mind—instead of wanting to lie down after lunch I want to get out; housework and all connected with it no longer seems drudgery. I am a changed woman, and goodness knows I needed to be changed. Formerly my family were tired of listening to my grunting and groaning. Now I guess they're getting tired of listening to my songs of praise for Dr. Brady and his Iodin Ration.

As the function of the thyroid gland is the synthesis of thyroid hormone from iodine, the gland can't function normally without a constant, though minute, supply of iodine.

Grinace To Hear

Having been quite deaf for many years I was impressed by an article in your column—"Make a Face and Hear Better"—because I had observed people with poor hearing making peculiar grimaces when trying to hear something. So I began practicing the exercises you prescribed and have been remarkably benefited. Every one commends my improved hearing (T. T.).

Answer—Thank you. The exercises, and other suggestions, are given in monograph on "Timitus and Deafness"—for copy send stamped envelope bearing your address. Many deaf folk have reported improvement from taking an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex. This, too, is considered in the monograph.

New London Student Musicians Will Perform Wednesday Night

New London — E. C. Moore, director of the Appleton High school band and a member of the Lawrence Conservatory of Music staff will be guest director of the New London High school band at its annual spring concert at Washington High school Wednesday evening, it was announced by M. S. Zahrt, New London director.

Mr. Moore, who has a nationwide reputation as a contest judge, will offer suggestions to the band after the performance. The guest conductor is a member of the American Bandmasters' association, of which there are only 100 members in the entire United States, and is the author of many school music publications. He was host to the Wisconsin Bandmasters' association at Appleton during the last weekend.

The admission to the concert is free to induce a large attendance. The program of selections to be played is one of the most ambitious that has been attempted by the New London band, according to Mr. Zahrt. The band entered Class A competition last year and has won top honors in every music festival since 1935.

A novelty feature of the program will be the enactment of a mock wedding ceremony to the playing of "A Ragtime Wedding" by Yoder. Dalton Schoening will be the reader, Richard Demming the minister, Jack Seering the bride's father, Valois Peters the bride, and Glenn Smith the sailor bridegroom. All participants are members of the senior band.

It Is Said..

That one New London fisherman has developed a dislike for having his catch of pike photographed. Reason: he lost a string of five that was.

Eddie Helzer, 501 F. Quince street, had snapped a nice string of five pike Monday morning when a Post-Crescent photographer came along and asked if he wouldn't hold it up for a picture. To oblige, Eddie had to untie his string to get it out of the water. No sooner did he get it untied when his slack cane pole dipped down, indicating a whopper on the hook. Excited Eddie dropped his stringer and grabbed for the pole. When the big one was landed and he looked around he saw his other fish just sinking below the surface about 15 feet downstream. Fellow fisherman were unable to retrieve the string. Desperate but resourceful Eddie went to work and caught more to make up for the loss.

PICTURES PROVE FISHING AT NEW LONDON IS ALL RIGHT

New London—Here is proof of good pike fishing at New London Monday. After the fish began striking about mid-morning, dozens of fishermen went home to dinner with strings of five to seven. Among the first to come in with their limit were Fred Karuhn and Clyde Roepke, shown upper-left. They fished less than a hundred yards from their place of employment, the Verifine plant at the foot of Mill street, and caught most of them in the last hour of a 31 hour seige. They said the beer helped.

Many women joined the fishing fleet as well and Mrs. Richard Cole is shown clambering up the bank of the Wolf with a catch she shared with her husband.

Probably the happiest and most excited fisherman in the community was the lad shown at the left, Reuel Phillips, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Phillips, 311 E. Cook street, New London. Reuel caught a 25-pound gudgeon, 41 inches long, which swallowed the minnow at the end of the boy's 10-cent fishing line. Reuel was fishing alone off the dock of M. J. Heinz behind the business district and called for the services of two adult on-lookers to land his catch. His father notified game wardens and a deputy confiscated the fish late in the afternoon, advising the Phillips' they may be able to redeem it by purchasing it. (Post-Crescent Photos)

New London Team Places Second in Lions Tournament

New London—The New London Tamers placed second in the team events of the Wisconsin State Lions tournament at Stevens Point Sunday with a 2.558 total. Len Cline and Ralph Hanson posted a 1.059 mark for fourth place in the doubles.

Hanson hit counts of 587 and 223 in the doubles while Cline scored in the team event with 224 and 567. The tourney has one more week to run.

Lions Club League

The Tamers clinched the Lions club loop title when they took three games from the Growlers at Prah's alley's last night for an 8-game lead over the Roasters. The latter lost two to the trailing Twisters. Top scores were Dr. George Holm's 531 and 199, Lewis Sawall's 533 and 216, E. H. Smith's 540, Leo Blaschka's 217. The league has three more games to roll.

Goodfellowship League

Final Standings W L
Mikes Taverners 28 17
Ford Tractors 26 19
Cedar Lawn Dairies 23 22
Post Office 23 22

Mikes Taverners finished on top of the Goodfellowship league at the close of the schedule last night. They lost two games to the Post Office while the Tractors were taken for two by the Dairymen.

Les Werner posted a 593 total with lines of 210 and 204 but failed to dislodge the season's records of 622 held by Arnold Zitzke and 233 held by Earl Frapp, both of the Tavern team. The Cedar Lawn claimed both team marks for scores of 990 and 2659.

Tighten Policy For Listing of Wooded Property

New Rule Provides Owners Must Practice Selective Logging

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Administration of the state forest crop law, under which owners of timber lands are enabled to take their properties off the property tax roll and to exchange such assessment for the relatively light forest crop tax under an agreement to produce a timber harvest in which the state and local governments will ultimately share, has been tightened under new rules adopted by the state conservation commission, it was learned here today.

In order to guard against the practice of carrying lands on the forest crop roll for a period of years and then removing them to cut without regard to forestry principles, a new rule provides that owners of virgin timber must contract to practice selective logging when the time for harvesting arrives.

Restrictions on county-owned entries have also been stiffened, it was revealed.

Lands To Be Reexamined

Formerly counties were permitted to enter a limited proportion of lands unsuited for forestry in order to obtain good blocking under the new regulation, all such lands will be reexamined, and much of it will probably be cancelled, it was said.

"This is in conformity with the forest crop law principle that the state is not warranted in paying aids on lands which cannot pay a return from future timber crops."

In order to reduce the revenues lost to local units through the removal of such forest property from the real estate tax roll, the state law contemplates the payment of 10 cents an acre to the localities. In recent years, however, the state appropriation has not been enough to cover the steadily increasing acreage of forest crop lands and recently counties protested that the average payment has fallen to less than 6 cents an acre.

The new policy of stricter qualifications for forest crop entries is believed to be a reflection of the shortage in aid funds. By reducing the acreage on the rolls, it is felt that the appropriation will go farther.

W.P.A. Officials Promise Approval Of Sewerage Plans

Engineer Says Project Should be Ready for Operations in 6 Weeks

New London—The Works Progress Administration will approve the city's long-term sewer improvement project and WPA engineers will prepare working plans from available charts and maps at no extra cost to the city, the common council was assured last night by G. F. Moody, W.P.A. district supervisor, and W. Moore, district planning engineer. The W.P.A. officials appeared before a special meeting of the council.

New London's proposed sewer project is similar to many already under way in the district, Mr. Moore explained, and since the sewer plans already have been approved by the state health department the project should be ready for operation within six weeks.

The W.P.A. will require four sets of the plans prepared by R. M. Connelly, city engineer, and the work will be set up in units of one to four months as finances and labor dictate. The city will be remunerated for the cost of the plans through credit as sponsor of the project.

Levi Krake, Jr., was granted a tavern operator's license and bills were allowed.

The new mayor and aldermen will be sealed at the regular meeting of the council this evening.

Near-Capacity Audience Hears Artur Rubinstein Perform in Last Concert of Artist Series

THE MAGIC of Artur Rubinstein's music cast a spell over the audience at the final concert in the Community Artist series last night at Lawrence chapel, and held it enthralled until the pianist had taken his last bow and made his final exit. A near-capacity crowd was on hand to participate in this outstanding treat of the musical season in Appleton.

Exquisite patterns of melody took form under the fingers of Rubinstein like a lovely tapestry grows and unfolds in the hands of an artisan. His music flowed in a river of sound, sometimes gently and in meandering fashion, sometimes rushing in a veritable cascade of notes which seemed to tumble over each other in an effort to be expressed, sometimes crashing with resonant chords.

Just to watch the artist's hands as they moved over the keyboard was a joy, for they executed the most difficult passages with apparent ease and without ostentation. They gave the impression of superb strength under perfect control.

Artur Rubinstein, while he is a master musician, is also a good showman, as evidenced by his choice of the nocturne for the left hand which he played as an encore for the first half of his program. Played entirely with the left hand, the piece gave him an opportunity to display his complete control over that hand. If one was not watching the keyboard, one would never realize that the lovely melody was the result of using only five fingers instead of ten.

Program Varied
A canvass of the audience last night would have revealed a variety of opinions as to the high of Rubinstein's program. Each lover would have chosen his first selection, "Toccata, C major," as the peak of perfection, while those who feel that Chopin's music cannot be equaled would have voted for the second half of his program which consisted of four of Chopin's compositions including the familiar "Polonaise, A flat." And for those who incline toward the modern school there were two Debussy numbers, "Prelude, A minor" and "Ondine," as well as a Cesar Franck selection and a Stravinsky composition.

The Stravinsky piece, "Petrouchka," which was written especially for Rubinstein and dedicated to him, was full of surprises including drumming bass passages, crashing chords and lifting melodies. It is a showy piece and Rubinstein made the most of it, his fingers flying over the keys with unbelievable rapidity yet every note receiving its full emphasis.

The Chopin group was especially well received. Rubinstein played "Scherzo in C sharp," "Berceuse" and two mazurkas as well as the "Polonaise," and he responded to prolonged applause by playing the

Bolivia Has Philosophy of Tomorrow, Students are Told

Miss Bernell Johnson, a junior at Lawrence college, described her life in Bolivia for members of the Edward Weissmiller chapter of Quill and Scroll at Appleton High school Monday afternoon.

"One of the most amazing things about Bolivia," Miss Johnson declared, "is the attitude. It frequently takes three days to a week for travelers to become acclimated. Because it is far inland and because of its unusual altitude, fewer tourists come to Bolivia than to the coastal nations of South America."

The major portion of Miss Johnson's discussion was concerned with the school system in Bolivia. There are only two colleges and consequently the secondary schools attempt to include in a four-year curriculum the equivalent of high school and junior college work in the United States. Students sometimes take as many as fourteen subjects a year, including geology, astronomy and philosophy. Half of the courses are taught in Spanish and half in English. As a result Miss Johnson speaks fluent Spanish.

"Bolivia has the philosophy of tomorrow," she said. "No one ever does today what he can put off until another time. All the business houses and factories observe the afternoon siesta and everything closes at noon." Miss Johnson plans to visit her family this summer after a 3-year stay in America.

"There seems no doubt that some supplies are going across Russia to Germany on the trans-Siberian railroad," the envoy said. "We shall have to adopt the same procedure of stopping ships to see whether they are carrying contraband destined for Germany. This will probably mean the beginning of a system of navicerts for the Pacific."

Navicerts are documents issued by the British embassy certifying that certain items of cargo are of "unneutral character," that is, are not contraband and are not destined to Germany.

The Canadian control port was to have been instituted to eliminate the taking of American ships into control ports within the combat area, a practice against which the state department has protested.

Copper and a wide range of machinery, along with some gasoline, formed the principal exports of the United States going to Russia from west coast ports. Until several months ago molybdenum also was a large item of export, but was cut off under the "moral embargo" since it was useful in the manufacture of airplanes.

American products from the east coast are also being sent to Russia via Mexico, chiefly from Nazatlan. Russian ships take the goods from American eastern ports, transport it to Mexican eastern ports for transshipment across Mexico to western ports, where it is again picked up by Russian ships for transport across the Pacific.

Bureaucrats are Fighting Bill to Curb Their Power

Issue of Independent Commissions Before Congress, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — The struggle for power within the United States goes on at the Capitol even as orators grapple about democracy and freedom abroad. This very week a crucial issue is in the first stages of decision—whether the congress shall make the laws or surrender to so-called independent commissions the rights of the citizens in the arbitrary exercise of governmental power.

The Logan-Walter bill which seeks to install fair procedures in governmental commissions is being fought by the bureaucrats who want no limitations whatever on their authority. They do not want congress to prescribe how hearings should be conducted or what steps shall be required before regulations having the force of law are proclaimed. They want the right to continue to issue rules and regulations irrespective of the power given by congress.

It is interesting to see how the bureaucrats have succeeded in being the question of a fair deal for the citizen by crying out that the purpose of the Logan-Walter bill is to create delays and frustrate justice. The truth is governmental commissions in recent months have manifested a regrettable arbitrariness which makes it impossible for the citizen to get justice in the courts. The independent commissions have the final say so as to what are the "facts" and anything from hearsay to inference can be introduced as evidence so that on such "facts" the commissions reach final conclusions which, under the terms of the law, the courts are powerless to overrule.

Logan-Walter Bill
The Logan-Walter bill is the product of years of study by the American Bar association. It has been delayed and side-tracked by certain New Deal interests which are afraid to give the public a measure that will insure a fair deal. No better issue could come into the forthcoming campaign than the implications of the controversy over the Logan-Walter bill. A roll call vote on the measure will be a simple thing for the citizens to understand—those who vote against it joining themselves up with the totalitarian concept which has obsessed some of the younger groups which have taken hold of key positions in governmental commissions.

There are many instances in which governmental commissions now, always violate the spirit of a fair trial by insisting on acting as judge, jury and prosecutor. Because many of these hearings are technical, the public does not know of the grave injustices being perpetrated in the name of the government of the United States. Even the president, who cannot possibly follow the details of these measures, has been given a wholly biased impression of the Logan-Walter bill. So subtle is the influence of the bureaucrats in government that, if they can prevent the passage of such a reform measure, their hold on governmental powers will be more far-reaching in the future than the past.

Some of the commissions are presided over by lawyers who ought to know better than anybody else what constitutes a fair hearing. But the political atmosphere and the zeal of class combat gets into their veins and they often become vindictive and petty. The record of one hearing in particular last week shows a punitive spirit which in itself makes it desirable for congress to consider carefully the lobbying which is being done by the commissions themselves to prevent any check on their authority.

Big Issue
The whole subject of independent commissions is coming to the fore as one of the big issues of our times. Originally, it was felt that some of the tasks that it had to delegate to others to administer were too important to be put into a bureau to be handled by a political cabinet officer. It was desired to secure protection for the rights of the minority by having a bi-partisan board. But little by little the New Deal has frustrated the will of congress by appointing members of one class and viewpoint, thus destroying any chance for a minority viewpoint to be expressed. Lately under the so-called executive reorganization law efforts have been made to take all the independence out of these commissions, which were originally creatures of congress, by putting them under political cabinet officers.

This means the end of any minority representation in governmental boards and commissions. It means that when defeated at the polls, the minority's rights are destroyed for they have no further redress in the courts as they used to have. To deprive 17,000,000 persons of any voice in the operation of their government is to introduce an element of tyranny which congress itself has never allowed in its own halls. Yet independent commissions and boards hitherto responsible to congress where minority and majority viewpoints are permitted are hereafter to be tools of the chief executive and his cabinet officers.

If congress once realizes what is happening, it will not be so ready to delegate broad powers of law-making to bureaucrats who are not elected by the people. These commissions heretofore have been responsive to congressional criticism, but hereafter they will be cut loose altogether from any responsibility to the legislative body and will be part of a system of 1-man government to which Americans are presumably opposed.

Democratic Party Appears To be Holding Its Own in 2 States of 'Solid South'

By INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

Princeton, N. J. — Despite Republican gains in many Northern and Western states since 1936, as shown in Gallup Polls and in by-elections and primaries recently, the Democratic party has been holding its own in the "Solid South."

That becomes clearer today as the result of two state-wide surveys just completed in Virginia and Kentucky by the American Institute of Public Opinion. Voters in the two states were asked: "Which party would you like to see win the Presidential election this year?" The replies of those with opinions on the question are as follows:

VIRGINIA VOTERS
Favoring Democrats 72%
Favoring Republicans 28%
KENTUCKY VOTERS
Favoring Democrats 60%
Favoring Republicans 40%

Since President Roosevelt carried these two states by 71 per cent and 60 per cent respectively, there has been no significant trend in party strength in Virginia the Democrats are, if anything, slightly stronger than they were four years ago.

Previous Institute tests in Texas and Oklahoma, reported ten days ago, showed the same firm Democratic lines there as well.

Ever since the Republican party broke into the "Solid South" in the Smith-Hoover election in 1928, carrying such states as Virginia and Kentucky among others (students at the University of Virginia draped a statue of Thomas Jefferson in black when the news arrived) Republican strategists have cherished the hope of making gains in that section again.

At the present time, however, the South appears to be the least of the Democrats' worries.

Favor Third Term
Virginia and Kentucky are two states where a majority of voters favor a third term for President Roosevelt at the present time. Asked, "If President Roosevelt runs for a third term will you vote for him?" 59 per cent of those with opinions in the Virginia survey said "Yes," while 51 per cent in the Kentucky survey said they would vote for FDR again.

But even in these two Democratic strongholds the vote favoring a third term is substantially below the "normal" vote for the party today — 13 points lower in Virginia and 9 points lower in Kentucky.

With 19 states studied thus far in the Institute's pre-convention preview of the 1940 campaign, it becomes clearer than ever that the real battleground of the November elections will be in the North and Middle West—especially in the states between the Hudson River and the Rocky Mountains.

Within this "battleground" area today New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Minnesota are leaning

11 Cases of Truancy Are Found in Month

Fifty-five cases of non-attendance were investigated by J. G. Pfeil, public truant officer, during March. Of the total he found 11 cases of truancy, 10 cases of parental negligence and 34 pupils were absent from school for other causes. Three boys and two girls were returned to school by the truant officer and eleven cases of delinquency were found.

Democratic, while New Jersey, Ohio, Michigan and Iowa are leaning Republican.

CONFORMAL SHOES ARE ACTUALLY MOULDED TO FIT YOUR FEET!

1 First, select the fashion-right Conformal shoe you like. Then we accurately fit your foot for proper shape, length and width, as with other shoes.

2 Your Conformal shoes are placed on a special electric device which temporarily softens the special plastic lining of the patented Plastic Insoles.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

The lovely, understanding nature of IRENE DUNNE endears her to all her friends, and all who work with her. She is famed for her diplomacy, kindness and grand sense of humor.

Of all the effected mannerisms a girl or woman could adopt, being sarcastic is about the most beautiful.

Many girls feel that being sarcastic (or sharp tongued) is being clever. They like to use their tongue as a whip and they think they enjoy seeing people squirm. They get double satisfaction out of a lashing remark if others, too, laugh at the victim. You have met some of these girls and heard them, as have I, but you'll agree they are not desirable as friends.

Men Detest the Habit

I can easily see how the term "Sarcastic Old Maid," got its origin. For sarcastic girls are not appealing to men, and the majority of them spend their mature days regretting their sharp tongues of youth.

Each one of us wishes to be built up, not torn down. We know in our innermost consciousness, just what great failures we are. But we don't want to be told that we are great failures! We want others to think we are pretty grand, and we want a friend to give our morale a boost once in a while.

Don't we all adore the friend who comes into our home saying, "This is great of you to invite me. I always like coming here for an evening. You are looking very fit, my dear!" That friend has most likely conquered a great deal within herself. He has reached an excellent living perspective for he realizes that his friends like a cheery, kind of flattering word, just as he appreciates one himself.

It is a fact that most sarcastic persons feel they are "great shakes." They have made a very thorough study of a friend's "sore spots" so to speak, and instead of aiding that friend to correct his inferiority, he opens the wound wider and watches the victim suffer. If these sarcastic people are clever and bright, what would they be doing to conquer if they would first conquer this deadly bad mannered, universally disliked trait! There is no telling what goals they may reach if they concentrated on constructive rather than destructive remarks.

Their Secret

The truth of the fact is, sarcastic persons usually have a greater inferiority than the persons they like to hurt. It is a defense mechanism, this habit of hitting a fellow before he may hit you. The best way to deal with them is to give them better than they give you, a few times. If a booming roar of sarcasm doesn't subdue their unbridled tongues, simply cross them off your list of friends or acquaintances, and go along with your peaceful life.

The lovely traits of personality which any religion glorifies, still hold good in a world almost too cock-eyed to exist. The power to understand your fellow men is perhaps the greatest gift you can wish for. To know why they are timid, selfish, blustery, cruel, unsympathetic, or complaining is the right key to lasting friendships. The

Some Expert Bids Scare Average Man

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Some of the carefully considered bids of experts would give the average player nightmares. I refer to a bid such as South's in the following hand, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable. Match-point duplicate.

NORTH		EAST
♠	Q J 10 9	♠	A 6 5 2
♥	3	♥	8 7 4
♦	A K Q 7	♦	10 6 5 3
♣	7 4 3	♣	9 8
WEST		SOUTH
♠	K 8 4 3	♠	A 10 9 2
♥	K Q 5 3	♥	8 6 2
♦	8 4	♦	A K Q 5 2
♣	A J 10	♣

The bidding:
West North East South
1 club Pass 1 spade Pass
2 spades Pass 3 clubs Pass
Pass Pass Pass Pass

Before we get to South's remarkable three club bid, there are a couple of other bids that require explaining. West, obviously, chose his opening club bid as a preparedness measure; that is, his spade suit was too weak to mention, and to open with one heart would put him into quite a hole if partner responded with two diamonds. North was afraid to overcall, although most experts would risk a diamond bid on his hand. East chose to answer the opening club bid with a spade, on the theory that it was such a weak hand he might as well make the largest one-bid possible, and then subside. Actually, I think a one diamond response, leaving the road open to a one heart or one spade rebid by West, would have been better tactics. South was not strong enough to overcall the one spade. He certainly did not like to mention his five card suit, which had been bid to his left, and to bid two hearts was equally unthinkable in view of the fact that the bidding up to that point suggested that East and West might hold almost all the high cards.

However, West raised to only two spades and East promptly passed, the situation took on quite a different color. Now South was absolutely certain that North must have some values. Another very important factor had entered the picture: West had not rebid his clubs nor mentioned no trump. South knew that a large proportion of opening club bids that are followed by raises of partner's take-out are based on short club suits, hence on this particular bidding South felt that there was an excellent chance of finding West with only three clubs. This hope was strongly bolstered by the fact that North, who must have some values, had not overcalled one club. The only sound reason South could imagine for this failure to overcall was that North must have clubs and had been "lacking back" as a trap. All these considerations led to the apparently absurd three club bid on South's part.

West opened a low spade. East won and shifted to a heart. Declarer ducked and the queen won. West now shifted to a diamond. The king won and declarer ruffed a spade, then led a second diamond toward dummy, winning with the ace. Another spade was ruffed and a third diamond was led. Declarer realized that West might ruff this lead, but since West must have three of the five missing trumps, this ruff would not matter, inasmuch as it would rob him of a natural trump trick. Actually, West did ruff, then turned the spade king. Declarer ruffed, and reduced to two trumps, led the club king. West won and returned the club jack. This cleaned up the trump situation for declarer, who now was able to lay down the heart ace, ruff a heart, and discard his last heart loser on the diamond queen, thus fulfilling the bold contract.

VISITING CARDS AT FORMAL TEAS

Dear Mrs. Post: A friend gave a large formal tea for a bride-to-be and a card tray was provided and placed in a conspicuous place on a hall table. However, after the party the hostess found only four cards. To a hostess like myself, who was always brought up to follow these conventional courtesies, the casualness of the guests would have been annoying. Will you tell me what custom is accepted as correct usage for leaving cards at an afternoon tea.

Answer: I would say that about one person in fifty leaves a card at an afternoon tea. And among people who know each other at all, the percentage is even less. There are several reasons why a stranger leaves a card. She may want her hostess to know she was present or she may want to make sure that she knows her full name or perhaps she wants her to be able to enter her name on her visiting list.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Three of the cardinal assets of a star salesman consist of a sincere belief in his merchandise, the ability to state his main sales points clearly and briefly, plus dogged perseverance in meeting prospects. Be sure you read about the match test today. You can use it effectively when you propose to your sweetheart as well as when you try to sell your goods or merchandise.

CASE Q-138: Ned G., aged 35, is salesman for an insurance firm.

"We have two very different types of salesmen on the force," he stated. "One of our men has the gift of gab, and can talk your arm off. The other fellow is rather quiet. He doesn't say much, but he does believe wholeheartedly in life insurance."

"The boys around the office call him 'Clam,' because he keeps his mouth shut most of the time. But he brings in as much business every month as the fellow who has the gift of gab.

"Dr. Crane, don't you think that some salesmen talk themselves out of a sale?"

Yes, some salesmen talk too much, even to the point of boring their prospects or muzzling the critical psychological moment when they should close the sale.

I have previously told you about a man in an audience which I addressed who wished to speak during the open forum following my remarks. The chairman had already announced that he would limit everybody to a maximum of two minutes apiece during the discussion.

This man irritably exclaimed, "You can't say anything important even in five minutes," and angrily stalked out of the auditorium.

Precise Versus Loose Thinking
A man who doesn't know exactly what he wants to say, may consume 20 minutes trying to beat around the bush. A person who has planned his course, however, or who has precisely thought his way through to a conclusion, can usually state his case simply and intelligibly.

You may remember that Abraham Lincoln delivered his immortal Gettysburg address in about 2 minutes, whereas the silver tongued orator Everett exhorted the audience for 2 hours. But Lincoln's speech of only 267 words was far superior.

The Sermon on the Mount, as reported in St. Matthew, wouldn't have taken but a few minutes to deliver, but it has proved the heart of all great ethical systems and the foundation stone of our own American Constitution.

It doesn't take long to state great truths. A man in love with a girl, needs only three words to present his case, as in "I love you." If you had seen the letters written by soldiers during the World War on their death beds, you would appreciate better how nobility of soul and sublimity of expression can be revealed in a few direct sentences.

Even when great orators lie dying, they don't engage in roundabout circumlocutions, but speak simply, tersely and effectively.

The Match Test for Salesmen

A man who has his ideas well organized, can express himself in very few words and still cover the essentials of his sales speech. One of the best methods for training salesmen in brevity and terseness of utterance, therefore, is the match test, which I described herein a year or so ago.

Let him light a match and then present the salient points of his merchandise before the flame finally reaches his fingers. This is a good plan to adopt in dealing with a busy executive who may try to avoid an interview. Make him the following sporting proposition:

"You are a busy executive so I'll guarantee to state my main points before this match can burn down to my fingers. What do you say? I'll strike this match, with your permission, and stop when it gets too hot for me to hold any longer, unless you then are willing for me to continue."

That little experiment would be good for politicians and professional orators, too, don't you agree?

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing stamped, self-addressed, stamped envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of our psychological tests.)

Can't Begin Too Early to Teach Child Self-Reliance

BY ANGELO PATRI

The mental weaning of children is much more difficult than the physical one. A mother recognizes immediately that a child must cease breast feeding or bottle feeding and learn to feed himself at the table but she does not see the necessity for the mental weaning that should begin about the same time, or earlier.

That is bad for the baby and bad for the family. They grow weary at times only to start afresh at the next cry. They do not know that by waiting on them, doing for them what they might well do for themselves, letting them idle and fret when they might be doing something useful for themselves or somebody else, that they are holding them in bondage, crippling them for the life they must soon face single handed.

"He won't let me out of his sight," said a young mother, pride struggling through her irritation. That's all very well, but the time is coming, maybe that very evening, when this young mother wants to go out with her husband, when she ought to go out. But the baby, tyrannical in his demands, will not let her go. He howls himself blue in the face and she says, "I can't leave him."

A change from the routine of office and home and they need to share each other's pleasures. It is not right to allow a child to absorb a parent. It does the child no good and it does positive harm to the family relationships.

Everybody is familiar with the mother and son so devoted to each other that every hour spent apart is deplored by one or the other. A mother, cutting the meat on the plate of her fifteen year old son, another mother washing and ironing the silk underthings of her eighteen year old daughter who is idling about the house, yawning her head off because she has nothing to do. "Well, she can't spoil a fifty cent manicure for a bit of laundry work that takes ten minutes." "Why should she cook when I'm here? After all, she is young, but why not teach her to enjoy herself in feeling powerful, self-sufficient, useful? That is a fine feeling, too, especially in the time of need.

One girl who was never weaned from her mother's care married and went housekeeping. The marriage is going on the rocks because daughter goes back home to mother for her meals and drags her husband along, too. She can't spoil her manicure, she doesn't see the use of cooking for two when her mother has a dinner ready for five. She just can't get along without mother to tell her what to do, how to do it, and do it for her.

Begin early. As soon as a child can hold the wash rag let him hold it and feel himself doing something important. Teach the children to work; teach them to relieve other folk who work for them; teach them to be self-sufficient as far as possible. Let them go. Don't bind them to their infancy.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Preparation for Career Should Precede Marriage

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man torn between love and ambition. I am in love with a girl, but I am still in college and will not be financially able to marry for several years. Shall I marry her and give up the profession I have been fitting myself for and take any job I can get? I worship her, but my desire for success is almost as great as my love. What shall I do?

JOHN A.

Dorothy Dix

In the struggle between love and ambition love may win the first round, but ambition always scores the final knockout. I have known many men and women who have given up their careers to marry some one with whom they thought they were in love, but I have known very few of these marriages to turn out well. Nearly always the love was killed by balking ambition. The men and women were dissatisfied and miserable and came to feel that they had paid too high a price for their romance.

Do not think that you are showing the girl what a great lover you are by giving up your career in order to marry her. A finer proof of devotion would be to go on and make yourself worthy of her by proving that you have enough strength and manhood to control your passions and achieve a success that is worthy of her acceptance.

"All for love and the world well lost" is a fine, resounding poetic slogan for the sentimental, but it doesn't bear the test of everyday, actual experience. The grand passion cannot live on air and it is sadly true that romance has to be financed. Only those marriages are happy in which people can go on living pretty much as they used to do before they were married and in which they can carry out their plan of life.

So put marriage out of your thoughts until you are ready for it. If your girl doesn't love you well enough to wait for you, she is small loss. And if she isn't interested enough in your ambitions to sacrifice something for them, she would make a poor wife, anyway.

Mental Qualities
Should be Similar
Dear Miss Dix—Is it true that husbands and wives who are direct opposites get along much better in marriage than those who are alike?

Answer: So far as physical characteristics are concerned it does not matter whether tall people marry each other or midgets in determining their happiness together. But when it comes to the mental and spiritual qualities of men and women it is a different matter, and undoubtedly the most successful marriages are those in which like marries like.

The chief thing in promoting domestic bliss is congeniality. The ideal home is a place of peace and harmony. That can only exist where the husband and wife think alike, have the same tastes and aspirations, and see life from the same point of view.

Therefore, when a man and woman marry they do well to pick out

Answer: I can only tell you what I would do if I were in your place. I would not hesitate to go into an old ladies' home, because there I would know that I was welcome, that I was independent, and there I would not be tortured daily by being made to feel that I was in the way and not wanted, nor aggravated by seeing the home that I had dominated so long in the hands of strangers.

More than that, in an old ladies' home you would have companions of your own age and would not be nearly so lonesome as you would be among younger persons who are not interested in you and who make you see that they regard you as a burden.

You will find that even your son is more fond of you when you go away and cease to be a bone of contention between him, his wife, and her children.

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: Allen and Tomi fly to California. Tomi insists on going immediately to the farm that she has inherited. Although she insists she won't be afraid, she becomes terrified after Allen leaves.

Chapter Seven
Morning
Tomi sank deep into the divan, pillows hugged about her, and began her vigil of terror. Each tiny sound took on a danger of major proportions. Once she dozed and the fire was awakened, she found the fire was dying, and she was left growing low. She couldn't—she wouldn't—remain in the dark.

Bartell had said there was wood off the kitchen. She grasped the lamp and started down the hall. The kitchen was at the end, a gloomy place with dark walls and woodwork, a gigantic stove looking like a prehistoric monster.

Two doors opened off this room. Tomi opened one and closed it quickly, bracing a chair against it. The stairway had led down.

Opening the second door, she caught the strong odor of salt water and, listening, heard the soft lap of waves not far away. A veranda lay outside and wood was stacked there.

Bracing an armload with her chin, Tomi stumbled back to the living room just as the lamp flickered out. She built up the fire and crouched on the hearth. Slowly the wood caught, then with a sudden burst of flame, threw the big room into full, rosy light. Tomi looked up and her hand came to her throat to crush back a scream. A man was looking down at her.

She jumped to her feet and backed away, then stiffened with anger. Off came her hat and her topcoat and she stalked forward to stand, hands on hips, chin out, her gaze focused on a life-sized oil painting of the late Timothy Toland, which laughed down right into her face.

"You're responsible for this," flared Tomi, her voice sounding hollow in the empty room. "but I'm the one who's going to laugh last. This is another trick of that trained legal seal of yours, building a fire here so you'd give me a start that would send me high-tailing it down the road. Well, you're both wrong. I'm staying. And right now I'm going to sleep. With you up there no one but a Toland would dare come into this room."

Tomi felt better after that. She even welcomed a breeze which sprang up, bringing strange and ominous creaks to the old house.

She preferred them to smothering silence.

A Navajo blanket lay over the arm of a nearby chair. Tomi caved in to the divan and, worn with excitement, illness and fear, sleep the sleep of physical exhaustion overcame her. She was so drowsy that she was scarcely aware as dawn came: a white-faced man in a rumpled suit, who sneezed into a handkerchief and limped down the steps, swearing softly.

Sunshine was streaming through the windows when Tomi awakened. For a moment she lay justifying her mind to the change in her physical outlook. She glanced

THE HOME GARDENER

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

It is none too early for thought about fall flowers. This always brings chrysanthemums to mind. They start blooming when it's nights lengthen, and short days with accompanying long nights have more effect on early blooming than on late blooming. Once well started, chrysanthemums are somewhat immune to the effects of temperature until the flowers are about a mature. Then look out—even light frost paralyzes them.

Little is accomplished by letting the old chrysanthemum clump bloom without benefit of division. They remain untouched, the old clump may produce a hollow center, and flowers form from the outer shoots and none appear on the brownish center ones.

That is our cue. When the plan of its own accord, discards the central area we can safely say the portion is worthless and can separate it from the young shoots growing around the side at the base. Each of these young shoots will grow into a fine plant before the frost cuts it down if given good care.

Mum care consists largely in providing a rich, relatively heavy soil, good cultivation, constant shading through pinching out ends to induce symmetry and spraying at every opportunity.

Few plants are more persistent than chrysanthemums. They are so persistent that they are a nuisance. However, any of the standard plant sprays—applied according to manufacturers' instructions—effectively kill the pests without harming the host plant.

She preferred them to smothering silence.

Trade Barriers in Nation Growing to Ominous Numbers

Statutes in Middle West Cited by State Governments Council

BY W. W. HERCHER
Chicago — (AP) — Fences built of words are halting trade among states of the middle west.
They are the laws called interstate trade barriers, and Frank Bain, executive director of the Council of State Governments, reports they have risen to "ominous proportions" in the United States.
He referred to statutes like those of Illinois, Indiana, and Michigan which specify that state institutions must use coal mined in their respective states.

Or those of Minnesota and Iowa, where home-grown barley crops are protected by provisions requiring that all malt beverages sold in the states must contain 68 2-3 per cent barley malt.

Of the Wisconsin tax on margarine competing with butter produced by Wisconsin dairymen.
Resemble Tariff Walls
"Hundreds of trade barriers are today obstructing the free flow of commerce among the states," Bain said. "A trade barrier is the counterpart on the national scene of a tariff wall in international trade."

It is a statute, regulation or practice which operates or tends to operate to the disadvantage of persons, products or commodities coming from sister states, to the advantage of local residents or industries.
Iowa furnished an example of what he meant when, on April 1, state authorities attached a carload of kitchen ranges at Humboldt in a drive to force a St. Louis, Mo., company to obtain a license to do business in Iowa.

A. H. Martin Jr., executive director of the WPA's marketings laws survey, furnished other examples when he reported on trade barriers to the temporary national economic committee at Washington several weeks ago.

Retaliatory Measures
"Retaliation sometimes results from the imposition of requirements that states, when acting as purchasers, must give preference to local residents and local products," he said.

Wisconsin, in 1928, prohibited all departments from furnishing any plans for the election of public buildings to the various building exchanges in Minnesota until Minnesota repealed all of its laws discriminating against the materials and labor of Wisconsin. In 1933 Minnesota repealed such preference laws.

Martin's report, the result of an exhaustive survey, covered the entire country. Among middle western examples of trade barriers he cited:
A Michigan statute taxing wine made from home-grown grapes or fruit at 4 cents a gallon, while a tax of 50 cents a gallon is imposed on wine from out-of-state grapes or fruit.

A Minnesota law forbidding the importation of any ice cream products unless they are registered and the manufacturer is licensed by the state department of agriculture.

Regulations in Wisconsin and Ohio which grant liquor licenses only to persons who have resided in the state for a specified number of years.

An Indiana law specifically preferring Indiana limestone for public construction work.

The six northern counties of Ireland are part of the United Kingdom, separate from the Free State of Eire.

up and found Great-uncle Timothy laughing down at her.

"Good morning," she said pertly. "May I compliment you on your excellent choice of furniture and atrocious taste in wallpaper?" But she hurried to the windows to find each obscured by foliage, then swiftly went upstairs and turned into the first door to rush to the view from there.

"Oh," she breathed in rapt wonder. Directly below lay the blue waters of San Francisco Bay, white winged sea-gulls wheeling over the waves. Across the broad expanse tiers of mountains in graduating shades of blue and purple hunched their shoulders against the pale azure of the morning sky.

To the right lay San Francisco the white towers of its many hills gold in the sunlight.

Old Abe
Tomi hurried to another window. Here a long arm of bay curved inland, dividing her island from another which seemed tufted with trees. Its shores lined with white houses topped by scarlet roofs.

She looked down at the immediate foreground and her brow furrowed. She seemed to have inherited dozens of tennis courts.

Tomi opened the window and leaned out. Those couldn't be tennis courts, they weren't paved and each enclosure held oblong pools thick with flat-leaved water plants.

"Frog ponds," she said aloud. "I'll bet that's what they are."

Tomi went flying downstairs for her bugs and came flying back up to change into blue twill slacks, white turtle-neck sweater and white leather sneakers. Then, aware of gnawing hunger, she made for the kitchen.

Someone had been there. A cheery fire burned in the big range and on the table lay a battered hat filled with eggs.

Tomi, who had cooked only under the supervision of Molly, knew but a few of the rudiments. Coffee was made with a tablespoon for each cup and one for the pot; Molly always forgot the extra one. Tomi felt confident she could use four cups this morning and made it accordingly.

Bacon went with eggs. She discovered a thick slab of bacon in the cooler, then proved she could recognize a skillet by finding one and placing it over the fire. She also found a knife and carefully brought it down through the bacon and her left forefinger and spoke, long and earnestly, to both knife and bacon.

"Reckon you're Tommy," observed a voice from the door.

Tomi wheeled. An old man with a walrus mustache stood there. "And why do you reckon I'm Tommy?" she snapped.

"Timothy said as how you and the devil was on speakin' terms," "Uncle Timothy," retorted Tomi, acidly, "seemed to know a lot about me."

"Sure did," affirmed the old man, and eased into the kitchen. "He said as how you'd be wearing pants. Said you'd come along out here because you were too cussed not to. Allen—he said you wouldn't. Reckon he's right disappointed."

Tomi stiffened. So Bartell had been sure of winning the place. The old man rescued the smoking pan from the stove. "Bacon," he remarked laconically, "takes a cold skillet." He provided the skillet and stripped it with the bacon Tomi had cut.

Tomi swallowed her indignation. This was unquestionably Old Abe. He was in dire need of repair from teeth to trousers. Then Tomi saw the troubled look in his pale blue eyes.

"Reckon to keep me on?" he queried wistfully.

Tomi thought quickly. To whom would he be loyal—to Bartell or to her?

"What are your qualifications?" she asked.

"Qual—" he began then nodded. "Oh, them—well, the frogs like me. Frogs is awful fuzzy."

Tomi stifled her amusement. "It wouldn't do to disappoint the frogs," she observed. "But how about yourself? Do you like it here?"

"No Place To Go"
A gnarled hand engulfed the walrus mustache. "Well, now, fact is, I ain't got no place else to go. I got to thinkin' maybe you didn't know nothin' about rana-culture and you wouldn't mind givin' me bed and board for teachin' you."

The hard little lump, which had crystallized in Tomi's heart the previous night, when Bartell left, suddenly melted. No place to go. The phrase touched her sympathy.

"Bed, board and wages," vowed Tomi, and turned to the old man. "Abe, I'm dependin' upon you. I couldn't get along without you. You will stay, won't you?"

Abe's Adam's-apple worked convulsively. He blinked several times and turned to the stove. "Reckon that there bacon needs turnin', unless you like it burnt."

Breakfast prepared, Abe took his cup and plate and started for the door.

"I like company at the table," Tomi remarked to the retreating back.

Clapper Believes Politicians May Underrate Hull's Strength

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—It is easy to regard the renomination of President Roosevelt as inevitable until you begin to think what would follow after the nominating convention.

Up to that point, the argument in favor of renomination has the edge. Mr. Roosevelt's popularity at the polls continues. New Dealers and political bosses like Mayor Kelly of Chicago and Frank Hague of New Jersey are united behind Mr. Roosevelt. The convention will be strongly pro-Roosevelt and packed with politicians who have endorsed his renomination. Galleries at the Chicago convention will be packed with Chicago city machine workers all under orders to yell for Mr. Roosevelt at every opportunity. Undoubtedly the war situation will continue to provide another handle for the third-term argument. The Republican convention will have passed into history and it is a fair bet that the Democrats will take one look at the result and insist that Mr. Roosevelt must save the White House from the Republicans.

But after the convention, what? Republicans would be shouting that Mr. Roosevelt was trying to inflict himself upon the country indefinitely as a dictator. They would charge that as soon as the election was over he would take us into the war as Wilson did. They would predict four years more of economic stalemate, of heavy unemployment and agricultural difficulties, in short a continuation of what has occurred in the recent Roosevelt years. All of his past moves would be reviewed and pictured as part of his plot to fix himself upon the country. It would be shown how he had mowed down, or undermined, all potential rivals.

You can use your imagination and picture for yourself the most bitter and violent campaign within memory, with part of the population lashed into a state of hysteria. And if Mr. Roosevelt were re-elected the same thing would go on, with a more heavily Republican congress to oppose him. Probably in coalition with conservative Democrats the Republicans could control congress. Stalemate, bitterness, suspicion, a determined effort to break him so that he couldn't go after a fourth term.

Internal Strife Would Become More Pronounced
These imaginings are not fantastic. They are in keeping with what has happened in the past seven years. That internal strife probably would be repeated in sharper divisions. Mr. Roosevelt's best friends should not want to inflict that kind of punishment upon him.

Pressure from politicians upon Mr. Roosevelt arises not from any real interest in his policies but from their belief that he would be the strongest candidate. They know their business, still it is possible that

"Oh, rana's the same as a frog's surname, only, like the Chinese, it comes first. You got rana-sylvatica back East where the fool frogs live in trees; and rana-aesopus down in Florida, and rana-aurora around here."

He pointed to some wooden sheds and pronounced them the hatcheries. Then, as they approached the first pens, he turned to her with startled seriousness.

"When is your birthday?" he demanded.

"A-April," stammered Tomi. "But why?"

Abe heaved a sigh of relief.

Continued tomorrow

they are overrating Mr. Roosevelt and underrating Mr. Hull.

If it is argued that the war makes it necessary for Mr. Roosevelt to run again, that is also an argument in favor of Secretary Hull. If Mr. Roosevelt's handling of the war situation commends him so strongly to the public as to warrant ignoring the third-term tradition, Secretary Hull's handling of the war situation surely would give him tremendous strength with the country. If Secretary Hull would be weak in some mountain states because of the reciprocal trade policy, that must hurt Mr. Roosevelt too. Those who are so bitter against the Hull program surely are going to vote Republican whether Mr. Roosevelt is running or Mr. Hull.

It is said any candidate from the south would lose the Negro vote which is so important in several key northern states. In Hull's Tennessee Negroes vote more freely than in some southern states. Boss Crump even votes them in the Democratic primary, at Memphis.

As for Secretary Hull's age, it happens that Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes had a birthday a few days ago. He was 78. Secretary Hull is ten years younger.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 5 pints of urine a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there's something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Doan's Pills are sold everywhere. Get Doan's Pills.

Modern Motion Pictures Aid In Studying Habits of Birds

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Those of us who attended the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Society of Ornithology held in Milwaukee last Saturday couldn't help marvelling over the wonderful advances in motion picture photography during the last few years. Several of the lectures presented at the meeting were illustrated, and those of Cleveland P. Grant, famous bird photographer of Jaffrey, New Hampshire, were the most enthusiastically received.

You may remember the old argument about the drumming of the ruffed grouse (partridge to many of us). Some thought the booming sound was produced by the beating of the bird's wings against the log on which it usually stood, others maintained that it beat its own breast, and a few more observant stated that it wings struck nothing but the air.

When the earliest movies of the grouse were recorded they proved the last-named group to be correct. You may have seen some of those early movies, not colored, and showing the bird only as a blur in the middle of the picture. You had to look sharp to detect the swift-moving wings striking the air.

In Mr. Grant's recording of the grouse's drumming the scene was shown as a "close-up" and every color and marking, every motion was clearly shown. The proud strutting of the courting male, the cocking and swaying of ruffed head and the flash of the bird's golden eyes were so stirring that the feminine members of the audience, at least, must have agreed with Mrs. Grant who, the lecturer said, whispered to him while he was recording the scene, "Compared to that, men are pikers."

The strange antics of the courting sharp-tailed grouse and our native prairie cock (male prairie chicken) were also shown. After seeing the bowing, and scraping, the hopping and fighting of the rival males I can't humiliate them by calling them "chickens." I had heard and read of the way they puffed out their chests, distended the naked orange-colored air-sacs at the neck and in the case of the prairie cock, the raising of the two feathered tufts over the head, but this was the first time I had ever seen recorded the amusing, yet dignified, spring dance of the males.

Other unforgettable scenes from Mr. Grant's pictures were the feeding of the young orioles, the bathing of chipping sparrows, robins, bluebirds and other birds at a stream and the thousands of migrating snow geese recorded in Canada. Many of the pictures were taken in Wisconsin and Mr. Grant plans to spend the months of May and June in the state taking more movies of our native birds.

Dr. A. T. Harris of Gary, Ind., has been spending the last few summers in Door county and his movies of nesting gulls and terns in the islands of Green bay and Lake Michigan were unusually good. Nesting herring gulls are common in these places but he was able to record the nesting activities of the less common ring-billed gull as well. Much of his movie was devoted to a mixed colony of herring gulls and Caspian terns, nesting on a little reef, less than 50 feet in diameter, off the east shore-line of the peninsula. The nests of the birds were so close together they almost overlapped.

Have you ever told your bird-loving friends of seeing a rare or doubtful species and then traveled the eye of suspicion travel from one to the other? That was the experience of Walter Dansteeg of the Waukesha Bird club. He let his friends doubt his observation record of the sandhill crane, and then calmly showed them the movie he took of this rare bird. Other good shots in his movie were the rescuing of ducks frozen in ice, and his club's method of field work. This started out with a close-up of a feminine bird-lover heartily

ACTION PICTURE ON WEEKEND BILL

Out of the lurid and spectacular battle between the F.B.I. and law-breakers of all description comes "Outside the 3-Mile Limit," which will show at the Appleton Theatre starting Saturday. Jack Holt, Hollywood's greatest action favorite, is starred as a daring G-Man who sets out upon the trail of a dangerous gang of counterfeiters and killers. Other headline personalities who participate in what has been hailed as the best melodrama of the year, include Harry Carey, Eduardo Cinnelli, Sig Rumann, Dick Purcell, Donald Briggs and Irene Ware who supplies a romantic note.

Heading this picture is "Of Mice and Men." Written by one of America's foremost authors, John Steinbeck, who also wrote "Grapes of Wrath," "Of Mice and Men" brings a new portion of America to the screen with Burgess Meredith, Betty Field, Lon Chaney, Jr., Roman Bohnen and Charles Bickford.

enjoying a sandwich, then the whole group enjoying lunch (The Green Bay Bird club will like this, only here's a tip, the Waukesha Bird club eats standing up), some one spots a bird, lunches are thrown down and everyone grabs field glasses, then a shot of the bird they spotted.

Harold Wilson, Ephraim's hard-working bird bander, and his illustrated lecture on banding of gulls proved so interesting to one of our group that he asked permission to accompany Mr. Wilson on one of his banding trips. An intensive study of the wood ducks on his sanctuary at Racine by Dr. B. L. von Jarchow was another informative lecture we enjoyed.

In the absence of Owen J. Gromme, Muri Deusing of the Milwaukee Museum staff presented Mr. Gromme's plans for the work on Wisconsin Birds. Anyone having records or other information is asked to write for cooperator's forms. Address Mr. Gromme at the Milwaukee Museum.

One of the features of the meeting I enjoyed most was the reading by Walter E. Scott, editor of the state club's magazine, "The Passenger Pigeon," of the handwritten account covering 40 years on the birds of Dodge county, by W. L. Snyder. The marginal notes, corrections and pictures, which I also use in my nature diary, made the work twice as interesting.

Isn't It Awful the Way the Servants Get Ideas Nowadays?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Now, waiter, let's see if we can get this straight. We want one, two scotch old-fashioned, and one, two rum collinses, and one, two dry martinis, one straight bourbon and two scotch and water, and bring the luncheon menu, please.

Oh, it's good to be back in town. Sisters, I'm telling you I can't stand the hell-around like mad all the time, up till all hours of the night and golf in the morning, but running a house is getting to be a pain in the neck. We opened the place just before Christmas, and the servants I had through that house in a little over four months reminded me of the League of Nations. That nice little Austrian couple didn't last till New Year's till I discovered she was pregnant and the man put up an awful row about wanting Pullman space back to New York. Henry and I talked it over, and we just decided to put our foot down, because if everybody spoils them pretty soon it will be impossible to get any kind of help. Henry said, after all she was a woman and it was a hard ride all the way back, sitting up in the day coach, but I was firm, because, after all, it wasn't any of our doing, although she was a cute little trick, and I might question Henry a little further on that. Anyway, we shoved them out and then that maid that Harriett gave me when she went to Reno scorching one of my very best nightgowns with the iron, so on the next payday I just took $40 out of her pay to teach her a lesson. That led to another row, and out she went. Then the next pair we had were English, and when I got the bills the first of February you would have thought we were running a colony restaurant just for the help.

Twice she gave the whole staff chicken, and any number of times chops and steaks, and I guess they must have been greasing the cars with the best butter.

You know I really am an economical housekeeper, and it drives me wild to see extravagance in the kitchen. So out they went, and a couple of French numbers took over, and what do you think the man pulled on us after a few days? He said the servants ought to have a union, because the employers, like us, were all ganged together and wouldn't hire a servant away from a neighbor. I said I should say I wouldn't steal anybody's servants away, and the man said if a couple did good work they ought to have a chance to get a better job. He said if Henry, for instance, won a big case for a client the client couldn't keep him on at the same wages forever, because other clients would hire him for more money. I said we just wouldn't go into that. Well, I bundled them out and passed the word around, and they disappeared. And although they said they were French and talked French, I think they were communists. I never felt a minute's peace until I got rid of them. I had rotten luck at Bradley's all season, too. I won $1,100 the first night and $840 the next time, but never could get off the ground again. Henry stopped me at $10,000 because times aren't so good, but I had a little party on the Spelvin's yacht, and my beautiful diamond bracelet went overboard. I was so mad I could spit. Henry says Lord knows went I can have another, because we simply have to economize and it wasn't insured that way.

What are we going to eat girls? I'm dieting again, but don't mind me, but it gives me a pain, all the hollering about people starving when the fact is I never really eat much. Just a few drinks and a salad and I am beginning to think alcohol is really food.

There were some really lovely parties, this year, though. The Swivets had 80 at their Valentine's party, and the wine up to your hips, and it must have cost Lord knows how much; but he should worry, with his aluminum mines, although he says labor unions are about to ruin him. He says they want $5 a day just for ordinary workers, and lazy and scrawny and shiftless, too, and the union beats them up and won't let them work for $2 a day to support their families. He says Westbrook Pegler is doing the greatest work in America today, exposing the unions, because otherwise we will surely have communism. Waiter, will you please do this all again? That's two old-fashioned, two rum collinses, and—but you have it written down. Meantime, we will decide what we want for lunch, although I am up six pounds, and just hate the sight of food. I wish somebody would starve me and see if I care.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

CONGO FOREST
The Belgian Congo is cut by the equator, and the sun rears down on it steadily. Whether the month is January or July, the sun is strong.

Scene in a Congo village
This part of central Africa is mainly lowland, and a person cannot easily reach a high place where he will find cool air. During several months of the year, much of the Congo country is treated to heavy downpours of rain.

Rain and heat work together to bring about fast growth of plant life. The Belgian Congo has millions of trees. If anyone tried to count them one by one, he would be an old man before he was one hundredth of the way through.

The trees give shade, but the sun's heat is so heavy that it gets down into the forest. It makes the forest air too warm for comfort.

Another trouble is the dampness. In the rainy season, the forest floor is soaked. A traveler gets his feet wet. He may brush against low branches of trees or against bushes, taking off water which wets his clothes.

That is on a morning when there is no rain pouring from the sky. When the rain is falling, few persons travel about.

If the day goes on without rain, the traveler finds that his clothing will dry out. In late afternoon, or early evening, a thick fog is likely to settle over the forest, and this may again give him wet clothing.

White men in the Great Forest of the Belgian Congo usually are carried from place to place. They lie in hammocks which are handled by natives.

Here and there in the Great Forest is a village. It may contain hardly a dozen huts, or it may be a large village with hundreds of people. Most of the natives are of the Bantu race, but there are villages of "little people"—the Pygmies.

In the Great Forest are brooks, and little pools with white lilies growing at the surface. There are troops of chattering monkeys in the tree tops, and strange birds fly or flutter about. Many of the birds have bright-colored feathers.

Firestone Airtex Mattresses

We've given these Firestone Airtex Mattresses every test we know, including personally sleeping on one, and we certainly admit that forward-looking people are right when they insist on sleeping on this new kind of sleep-foundation.

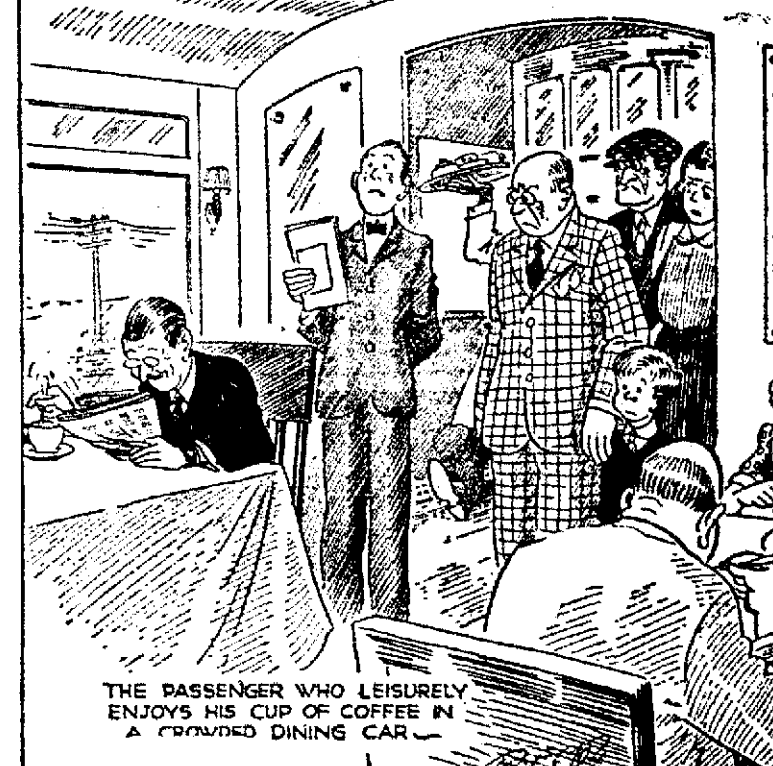

The exclusive patented process that Firestone has developed to beat up latex (the milk of the rubber tree) with air to a high froth and bake it just like angel food cake gives a springy, lively, sanitary, cool, one-piece mattress that looks likely to upset all old-fashioned notions of how to sleep.

Come to our bedding department and try this new idea. You've never felt anything like it.

BATTLES ANTHONY JONES

Several months ago Appleton amateur fight fans made the acquaintance of Anthony Jones, Chicago Negro boxer, who defeated Savio Canale. Since then both have won places on the Chicago Tribune International Golden Gloves team. Thursday night Jones will be here again and his opponent will be the lad above, Jack Whittinghill, Bloomington, Ill., who holds a win over the Negro. In gloves competition this spring Whittinghill wasn't quite as successful as last season but won three bouts before being eliminated. At any rate, it should be a great battle for both fighters have all kinds of ability. Thursday's card will show seven bouts.

ROLLS A PERFECT GAME AT ABC MEET

George Pallage of Akron, O., points to the perfect score of 300 which he rolled during competition in the American Bowling Congress at Detroit. It was the seventh perfect score in the classic 40-year history. Play stopped on every alley as Pallage got set for the twelfth frame. He shattered the silence with another strike.

PIONEER CAGE CHAMPIONS

Green Bay Bowler With Sore Back Has 300 Game, 730 Total

Green Bay — Bert Smiths had a sore back and decided to quit for the evening although he bowled 192 in his first game in a league series. A substitute was lined up, but at the last minute Smiths decided to continue. The next game he rolled 12 straight strikes for a 300 score and topped it off with 238 for a 730 total.

FDR Named to Start For Senators Today; Expect Record Crowd

Washington — President Roosevelt is expected to open his season against the Boston Red Sox. For six years Mr. Roosevelt threw out the first ball, but last year rain postponed the opener and a previous engagement kept him away from the second day start. The weatherman predicted showers for this afternoon. Before that forecast, Owner Clark Griffith said he expected a full house—31,000 fans—to watch Vice-President Garner lead the flag-raising ceremonies in the centerfield and the president to start the game. Congress arranged to quit work early so members could attend.

Major Leagues Opening Today

White Sox and Cleveland Meet. Bruins Battle Cincinnati

BY JUDSON BAILEY
NEW YORK — (P) — Menacing clouds cast the gateway of baseball's 16 major league clubs into gloom and uncertainty today, but all were chafing for the chance to spring into action. The weather, fair and cold throughout the east and midwest over the weekend, turned traitorous on the eve of the opening and not a single game was safe from the threat of the elements as the flag-raising approached. The schedule called for these eight openers:

National League
Chicago at Cincinnati
Pittsburgh at St. Louis
Philadelphia at New York
Brooklyn at Boston

American League
New York at Philadelphia
Boston at Washington
Cleveland at Chicago
St. Louis at Detroit

In each case the games were listed as the first of a three-game series and any interference in the lifting today would merely postpone the ceremonies until tomorrow with the cast and scenery unchanged. If all eight games escaped trouble today, upwards of 150,000 fans were expected to be present to give their favorites a proper send off.

Naturally the debut of last year's champions was the chief spectacle in each league.

The four times American league and world champion New York Yankees went to Philadelphia without Joe DiMaggio and handicapped

JINX FOLLOWS DI MAG

New York — (P) — It's no wonder baseball players believe in jinxes. Look at DiMaggio, limping around New York today while his Yankee teammates open the baseball season in Philadelphia.

The world champions' No. 1 slugger has played in only one inaugural in five years in the American league. In 1936 as a rookie he burned himself under a sun lamp. In 1937 he had to have his tonsils removed. In 1938 he was a hold-out until a week after the season opened. In 1939 he played (then hurt his leg on the last day of April). And in 1940 he strained a ligament in his right knee in an exhibition game.

by other injuries. It was the fourth time in five years the great outfielder had been absent from an opening, so the fact that he was in New York nursing a twisted knee could hardly be considered vital.

Ruffing Injured

However, Red Ruffing was hit by a batted ball in practice yesterday making his start also doubtful; Joe Gordon has been out of the lineup for two weeks with a charley horse and reserve outfielder Jake Powell is convalescing from a brain concussion.

Manager Joe McCarthy planned to use Monte Pearson if Ruffing was unable to play today and Connie Mack countered with Lefty Chubbey Dean.

At Cincinnati the Cincinnati Reds were ready to start the defense of their National league title in a game with the Chicago Cubs that was sure to attract a capacity crowd of approximately 25,000. The Reds have lost every opening game in the last eight years.

Two of the finest hurlers in the senior circuit, Paul Derringer of the Reds and Bill Lee of the Cubs were the mound choices. Aside from these two attractions the annual test of President Roosevelt's pitching prowess in the Boston Red Sox appearance at the nation's capital was the day's best sideshow. When the Senators' No. 1 fan got through throwing, Dutch Leonard was scheduled to take over for a duel with Lefty Grove.

The biggest turnout of the afternoon was expected in Detroit, where Tiger officials prepared to handle a throng of 40,000. Manager Del Baker of the Bengals listed Charley Gehring for duty at second base, a hopeful sign for Detroit fans, and planned to pitch big Buck Newsom against Vernon Kennedy of the St. Louis Browns.

The other American league tussle was to serve as young Bob Feller's springboard to a big year. The Chicago White Sox relied on Ed Smith, a southpaw, to stop the Indians.

Cards See Big Crowd

St. Louis, butt of much abuse about the poor attendance at its baseball games during the season, has had the biggest opening day sale in history for the Cardinals' debut against the Pirates. If the weather was agreeable the crowd was likely to be 18,000 or 20,000. But Manager Red Blakes had so many troubles he got little joy at this prospect.

Stu Martin was hurt and out of the lineup, complicating his infield problem further and he was forced to count on three centermen—Joe Medwick, Jimmy Brown and Johnny Mize—to get the gang to a good start. Curt Davis or Lon Warneke was to pitch with Bob Klingner working for Pittsburgh.

Brooklyn sent Whit Wyatt against Bill Posedel in Boston and the Giants offered Carl Hubbell, the favorite man of Manhattan, as the foil for the Phillies, who picked on Kirby Higbe.

GAMES TOMORROW (April 17)

AMERICAN LEAGUE
New York at Philadelphia.
Cleveland at Chicago.
Boston at Washington.
St. Louis at Detroit.
NATIONAL LEAGUE

Brooklyn at Boston.
Philadelphia at New York.

APPLETON BALL CLUB PITCHERS, CATCHERS START SPRING TRAINING

Here are just a few of the 32 ball players and would-be ball players who reported yesterday to Manager Eddie Dancsak of the Appleton Baseball club of the Wisconsin State league. The players were indulging in a "pepper game" to get accustomed to handling the ball and get a few kinks out of their muscles and joints. The group represented the pitching and catching prospects of the club and paring will be started today.

Dancsak was pleased with the turnout and spotted several fellows whom he is certain will make the grade. He also spotted several who were fat, didn't throw easily or who were too small. Yesterday's work, the early cuts, yesterday's work, out saw Dancsak give individual instructions and today there will be more of the same. A batting drill also was scheduled for today despite the fact the diamond is being improved. It will be held on the grass and will consist largely of testing the hurlers. Aside from that there will be exercises, occasional sprints around the field and the ever-present pepper game. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Brewer Athletes are Fighting Off Colds

Ocala, Fla. — (P) — The Milwaukee Brewers entrained for the north today with a number of athletes trying to fight off colds. Manager Mickey Heath will send the Brewers into a short practice session at Columbus tomorrow in final preparation for the American association opener Thursday. Heath said he would wait until tomorrow night before naming his opening day pitcher—probably either Frank Makosky or Bobby (Tiny) Kline.

MacPhail Says He Can Get Medwick for Pee Wee Reese

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK — (P) — Larry MacPhail made everybody's hair stand straight up today by saying he could get Joe Medwick in an even-up trade for Pee Wee Reese, "but isn't interested." The coast rumor foundry now has Slip Madigan going into the fight promoting business in Los Angeles with Ed Frayne, former aide to czar Mike Jacobs. For winning the Stanley cup, the New York Rangers each will receive

Bernstein Cops From Tony Martin

State Middleweight Title Goes to Winner of Bruising Bout

Milwaukee — (P) — Tools Bernstein, of Milwaukee, won the state middleweight championship by a decision over Tony (Cianciola) Martin, also of Milwaukee, in a bruising 10-round bout last night. Using a ripping left hook to the body and head with telling effect, Bernstein gained the nod from Referee Freddie Andrews. Bernstein weighed 150, Martin 152.

Annunzio Ferrara, 139, of Milwaukee, won a decision over Sammy Scully, 134, of Chicago, in the six-round semi-windup. Two Milwaukeeans making their pro debuts scored decisions in four-rounders—Larry Chatman, 167, Negro former diamond belt champion, over Paul Frazier, 167, of Chicago; and Ramey Mc Knight, 141, over Bobby Ryan, 137, of Chicago.

In other four-round preliminaries, Eu Eulein, 137, of Chicago, beat Marly Callura, 140, of West Allis, and George Feltes, 154, of West Allis, outpointed Johnny Pennacau, 152, of Cudahy.

Appleton Kegler Gets 623 Series In A.B.C. Singles

Henry Strutz probably rolled into A. B. C. money when he cracked a 623 series on games of 215, 195 and 213 in singles competition at DeBartolo yesterday. Joseph Reynebau hit 202, 188 and 193 for a 583 series. Fred Yelg hit 204 and 583, Ray Crane showed 513 and Frank Fries rolled 494 in other singles efforts.

Fries and Yelg paced the Appleton contingent in doubles with an 1,141 total. Fries hit 544 and Yelg cracked 597 with a 203 game. Strutz walloped games of 225 and 203 for a 610 series and Crane tallied 522 to give them a 1,132 score.

Wisconsin Nine Is Thumped by 7 to 4

Kalamazoo, Mich. — (P) — The University of Wisconsin's touring baseball team dropped a 7 to 4 decision to Western State Teachers yesterday. Thumping Nick Calabrese for 13 hits in the first four innings, the Teachers cashed all their runs in those frames. Thereafter Calabrese yielded only one hit.

Schilling led Wisconsin's nine-hit attack with two triples. Score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Wisconsin	002	000	110-4
West. State	132	100	000-7

LIONS TAKE HONORS IN LOX MILL LEAGUE

Each Forfeits One Match; Jim Koehn of Chute Is Upset

RESULTS
Jack Roberts (K) defeated Paul Strick (SJ) at 92 pounds.
Joe Biestervelt (SJ) and Bill Michler (K) drew at 100 pounds.
Gordy Hennes (K) defeated Jack De Kock (SJ) at 116 pounds.
Clyde Koehn (SJ) defeated Nic Steffen (K) at 116 pounds.
Don Kiel (K) defeated Jim Koehn (SJ) at 124 pounds.
Kenny Hurst (SJ) scored TKO over Reichel (K) at 132 pounds.
Ernie Van Boxtel (SJ) defeated I. Schatzka (K) at 140 pounds.
Ralph Jansen (SJ) drew with Feldt (K) at 148 pounds.
Owen Wildenberg (SJ) and Jack Vette (K) drew in heavyweight class.

LITTLE CHUTE — Coach Dago Schuler's mittmen from St. John high broke even in their initial fight with Kaukauna at the local gym last night. The score stood at 51 all. Each squad won a forfeit from the other with Woody McCabe being unopposed in the 153 pound class and Carl Giordana being left high and dry in the 165 pound weight.

The biggest up-set of the evening card had Don Kiel score a decision over Jim Koehn, one of the locals' outstanding mittmen. Kiel scored off in the initial round with a short, deadly left which had Koehn guessing Koehn was hurt in this round as he stopped a punch to the solar plexus. His opponent added more lefts in the second and third round to win.

Kenny Hurst made short work of George Reichel and scored a technical knockout in the second with Coach Cliff Kemp tossing in the towel before Reichel was hurt. Hurst was landing at will.

Fans enjoyed the Oney Wildenberg-Jack Vette go as the fighters alternated in rushing. Vette backed his opponents around at the start with Wildenberg throwing rights and lefts at close quarters. Wildenberg seemed to have the better of the final round but the count went to a draw. The count stood at 5 all until this bout with both lads out to win the honors for his school.

E. Van Boxtel Wins
Ernie Van Boxtel scored his first win for the season over Ivan Schatzka with the Dutchman taking points on short jabs. Schatzka swung wild blows to the head at long range.

Clyde Koehn won in his battle with Nic Steffen with the former scoring on fast blows to the body and head. Steffen was slower on the punch and Koehn beat him to Joe Biestervelt and Billy Michler fought to a draw in three hectic rounds. Both fighters displayed clever boxing and were fast. Biestervelt drew first blood with a hard smash to the nose with Mitze adding points on body blows.

Ralph Jansen and Feldt staged a slow fight for two rounds and then made up for it in the third. Jansen scored on short jabs while Feldt tried for haymakers and hit the canvas twice when wild swings carried him off balance.

Jack Roberts showed a neat left which landed often on Paul Strick in the first and second rounds. The third round was a draw. Strick kept coming in but couldn't evade his opponent's punches enough to score. Jack De Kock dropped a close decision to G. Hennes in the 110-pound class with Hennes too quick at close range. De Kock had the longer reach but failed to make use of it until the final round.

Proposal to Label Products Puzzles State Dairy Firms

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—State agricultural officials and farm leaders this week are studying with some anxiety a proposal of the federal food and drug administration which would require the producers of all food products for which health or dietary claims are made to label those products so that the consumer may learn upon which constituent elements such claims are made.

State experts were not agreed Saturday on the potential effect of such a regulation on the dairy industry, in which declarations of the nutritive and health values of milk, butter, cheese and other produce are regularly made.

Some state farm leaders, including the officers of the Wisconsin Dairy Industries association, are fearful that the rule as proposed will apply to dairy manufacturers while Ralph Ammon, director of the state department of agriculture, and Prof. Howard Jackson, head of the College of Agriculture dairy school, are confident that it will not affect dairying.

Contents Vary
Ground for the concern expressed here over the weekend is the fact that if such a requirement is applied to producers and merchandisers of dairy products, it will bring particularly difficult problems for Wisconsin dairymen because of the fact that the mineral contents of milk vary by seasons and according to the feed rations of cattle, it has been explained.

The proposed law requires the exact specification of the mineral ingredients of the food products covered, which would make it almost impossible for dairymen to comply, it has been said.

Ammon said Saturday that he had asked the head of the federal bureau to define the terms of the draft of the proposed regulation with respect to dairy products, so that dairymen and state officials could act accordingly at the public hearing scheduled in Washington on April 29.

Illinois Now Has Another Governor

Stelle Out of the State So President of Senate Takes Role

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Lieut. Governor John Stelle went to a baseball game today, so Illinois had a new claimant to the title of acting governor.

Senator George M. Maypole of Chicago, president pro tempore of the state senate, laid claim to the disputed role of acting chief executive as soon as Stelle left the state to attend the opening of the major league season at St. Louis.

The unique situation arose from Stelle's action a week ago in proclaiming himself de facto governor on the ground Governor Horner was too ill to serve. Governor Horner has refused to yield his authority, however, and has been supported by Attorney General John E. Cassidy.

Maypole said he would appear at the statehouse at noon to "serve as governor." He said he would demand the $33.33 a day salary which the governor receives, but gave no indication whether he planned to issue any executive orders.

The Chicago senator, defeated in last week's primary for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, has sided with Stelle in the unusual controversy over right to exercise the governor's authority.

GERMAN VERSION OF RESCUE IN THE NORTH SEA

Parents and Teachers are Urged to Help In Developing Educational Radio Programs

Neenah—Stop thinking of radio as a show exclusively. Don't be blindly thankful for what comes over the radio when you have a right to expect more wisdom. Do what you can to develop discriminating programs. Learn to detect insincerity, inaccuracies and dishonesty in programs. Provide listening facilities for schools in order that teachers may guide children to recognize what is good. Make concerted and cooperative efforts to better the programs.

These were a few of the suggestions offered by Harold B. McCarthy, director of the Wisconsin School of the Air, state station, in a talk to parents and teachers at the Roosevelt school Monday evening. Mr. McCarthy has been a guest of the S. F. Shattuck's during his two day stay in Neenah.

In the early days of radio, men of science and education had visions of the future of radio and certain promises were made, promises which haven't been realized, Mr. McCarthy pointed out. Over the doorway of the broadcasting house in London there is inscribed "and nations shall speak peace unto nations." That promise has not been kept.

Lack of Balance

Radio has been used for narrow and nationalistic viewpoints; for stirring up bitterness and hatred, the speaker said.

Another promise of radio, made in 1922, was education through radio and elimination of the inferior and mediocre. You know if that promise has been kept. One need only to consider the daytime serials that follow a prearranged pattern and offer little even in entertainment. One day alone can bring more than 50 of these serialized stories over the air lanes.

Quoting from an authority in education, Mr. McCarthy said "if democracy is to survive it can do so only by being a success. . . . If what comes over the radio is a balanced picture of American civilization, we have cause to fear for that civilization." The lack of balance, he continued, is the basic fault in radio.

Influence on Children

Pointing out that a recent survey indicated that children listen to radio an average of 2 1/2 hours per day, Mr. McCarthy emphasized the influence of the radio on children.

"Radio educates the child but who are his teachers?" he asked and carried the question with nations. Some of the more popular pattern programs, asking if these were the teachers parents wanted for their children.

"The Wisconsin School of the Air, organized in 1931, for nine years, has been trying to provide education for children but with real teachers," Mr. McCarthy declared as he mentioned among the programs offered by the School of the Air, "Ranger Mac," Professor Gordon and his music instruction and many others who have become for more than 30,000 Wisconsin school children, radio heroes. This is the kind of leadership that children should have. Radio can provide good under the right sort of leadership.

Wisconsin Idea

Distinctively a Wisconsin idea has been the teaching of creative art via the radio, the speaker said as he outlined the course and displayed art work submitted by students from various schools in the state as a result of the course study.

Radio under educational auspices with the cooperation and assistance of the teachers themselves can do a great deal, has done a great deal, and each year is moving forward. The majority of the radio industry is in the business to make money which probably accounts for the lack of balance in programs. Schools and education is a costly business and there is no profit in it but it has been demonstrated that radio can and does have a place in the educational program and radio's early visions and promises can be kept only if educators work in it, Mr. McCarthy contended.

The fund at present amounts to about $100. Mrs. Charles Bailar and church school teachers will be in charge of the sale.

Farley Relected for 6th Term as Head of New York Committee

New York—(AP)—James A. Farley, presidential aspirant, chairman of the Democratic national committee and postmaster general, was re-elected chairman of the New York state committee Monday for a sixth term.

The committee, meeting at the National Democratic club, adopted a resolution praising Farley for having "superbly displayed leadership in party councils," and for "his knowledge of national affairs, resulting from keen insight and personal observation during extensive traveling in the performance of his duties."

Farley accepted reelection by saying: "I will endeavor, in the future as I have in the past, to advance the interests of the Democratic party in the state and nation."

The resolution grouped Farley with President Roosevelt and Governor Lehman in a characterization describing Farley as "another great Democrat of New York."

Other incumbent officers of the state committee were re-elected with Farley and a slate of 16 delegates-at-large and 16 alternates to the Democratic national convention was selected harmoniously.

The slate is headed by Farley and Governor Lehman. Among the delegates was former Judge John E. Mack, Poughkeepsie, who nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt at the last two conventions.

Republicans Plan Their Convention

Predict Minnesota's Governor Will be the Keynote Speaker

Washington—(AP)—Capitol political interest shifted today to a meeting of the Republican arrangements committee at Philadelphia, with well-informed sources predicting that Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota would be designated keynote speaker for the party's national convention.

Besides Stassen, only Glenn Frank, chairman of the Republican program committee, and Alf M. Landon, the party's 1936 presidential nominee, have been mentioned prominently for the speechmaking post.

Some of Landon's friends expressed the opinion he would not want the job.

It was reported authoritatively that an influential group of Senate Republicans was suggesting Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) for permanent chairman of their national meeting. There also was discussion of Representative Martin (R-Mass.), the minority floor leader, for the permanent chairmanship, which is filled by the convention itself.

Political developments yesterday included:

In Missouri, the state Democratic convention selected a slate of unopposed delegates to follow the leadership of Senator Clark (D-Mo.) Two Missouri districts chose unopposed Republican delegates.

Paul V. McNutt, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, told a Jefferson day banquet at Parkersburg, W. Va., that monopolies have "handcuffed and hog-tied" small business. He proposed income tax exemptions for corporations with net earnings of less than $25,000 a year.

Keefe in Favor of Continuous Session To Preserve Peace

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—Congress should remain in continuous session, if necessary, "in order that no step be taken that may involve us in war," Congressman Frank B. Keefe, Oshkosh Republican, declared.

As the European war continues, there is increasing talk in congress as to what possible steps the government might take to prevent this country from becoming involved. "The safest assurance the people of America have for staying out of the war is to cultivate and maintain in the hearts of the people a consuming desire for peace," Keefe says.

"This involves our thinking and acting at all times in the interests of the people of America rather than permitting our emotion to demand our involvement in European controversies. If the spirit of war is to be cultivated at all it should be a war against unemployment and the other domestic problems that so loudly cry for solution at home."

Treasury Department Sets Value of Pound

Washington—(AP)—The treasury, acting to stave off possible harm to American business, adopted today the British government's "official" valuation of the pound.

The customs bureau ordered its collectors to value British merchandise at the fixed "official" price of $4.02 1/2 per pound sterling when assessing customs duties, instead of the free market rate, currently about $3.50.

In effect, the action will make some British merchandise more expensive in this country, and prevent the British from increasing sales here through currency depreciation.

The "official" rate is one fixed by the British government, and is the only price at which British currency can be purchased in England. The free rate is the market valuation of British money outside of England, where British money is sold by businessmen and international investors who have received money from England.

County Nurse to Give Three Talks on Health

What's New at the Library

Gladys Bagg Taber, daughter of Prof. Rufus M. Bagg of Appleton, has had another book published, this time a description of the Connecticut house where she lives with her family and her dogs. The book, "Harvest at Stillmeadow," is made up of two years of her "Diary of Domesticity" which runs in a national women's magazine, and it describes the abundant life of the countryside where three children and several dozen dogs run riot, and including county fairs, weekend visitors, dog shows and jam-making, gardening and dog-washing.

With the census enumerators hot on the trail these days, a new book about the quantity and quality of population entitled "People" by Henry Pratt Fairchild may seem timely. The author holds that statistics on population affect our lives greatly, that taxes employment, business, property, the kind of world we are going to live in, all depend in good measure on population. He points out that in less than two centuries the number of human beings has more than doubled, but today there are empty desks in our schools, and that the average age of our fellow-citizens is getting older.

Kathrene Pinkerton, author of "Wilderness Wife" tells of experiences on a 36-foot motor cruiser which for seven years was the home of herself and family, in "Three's a Crew." Their home was wherever they dropped anchor, and they chose stops along the coast of British Columbia and Alaska.

A unique personal narrative which reveals for the first time in dramatic detail the entire story of the coming of the second World War is Sir Neville Henderson's "Failure of a Mission." His attempt and failure to avert the European war is discussed, and eye-to-eye portraits of the outstanding figures of the Nazi regime including Hitler, Goering, Hess, Himmler and others are given. The book is essentially a chapter of autobiography, often humorous, always candid within the limits of diplomatic responsibility, and never impersonal.
